Let Him Have 50 Wives Did Astor Know? Law and Justice Dizzy Dancing

You observe an official desire to belittle, discourage, hold up to scorn anybody able to do a little better than somebody else.

If college football rules penalized any boy who might run farther than two yards with the ball, that would not help college football.

You do not help United States prosperity when you discourage officially men that happen to have brains enough to succeed better than other men.

Men like E. H. Harriman, who built the Union Pacific; J. J. Hill, who extended railroads into the Northwest, helping every farmer; Henry Ford, Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., Chrysler and others, some forgotten, that have had the energy and intelligence to put the United States on wheels, have not been detrimental to general welfare. Little men, with little brains, little fortunes and little ideas cannot build a big country.

In Africa, when a savage kills a lion, they let him have fifty fat, black wives. He doesn't need them, but is allowed to have them because it is important to have lions killed, and the fifty ladies make no difference.

If an American wants fifty golden millions for doing good work, let him have them. It is cheap at the price; he never takes the millions to Heaven, and his children usually scatter them.

Apart from all that, THANK HEAVEN for old age pensions that now seem secure, while the poorhouse fades into the background.

Early in the day, Wall Street, reading the President's ideas on taxing corporations, inheritance tax, etc., showed signs of alarm.

"Blue chip" stocks dropped as much as $3 a share. Then brokers, speculators, investors apparently said to themselves, "Time is long, years are fleeting, nothing lasts," and prices eased back.

Wise ones, with shaking heads, said:

"Waldorf Astor knew what he was about, when he took his family, himself and his money to England, turned British subject, and sold his valuable New York real estate at top prices, before 1929. He couldn't get the taxes for many of those properties now. He must have 'known something.'"

Others, equally wise, said:

"What did I tell you when J. Pierpont Morgan began selling his pictures for as much as $600,000 apiece, and recently began selling millions of dollars worth of miniatures in London?

"Morgan, the wise son of a wise father, knows it is better to sell your pictures yourself than have the government sell them for you and take half after you are dead."

To know how truly "funny" law and justice can be, read of the "technicality" that, to quote Universal Service, "threatened to cheat the electric chair of Bruno Richard Hauptmann." It was necessary to prove that the Lindbergh child was killed in the commission of a felony. The prosecution failed to mention the cash value of the sleeping suit, taken from the dead child's body, and returned during ransom negotiations. To prove a felony in a burglary it is necessary to prove that the criminal took something worth money.

Because he did not say how much the sleeping suit, was worth, the prosecutor might lose his case.

Interesting warning in the sad case of Miss Pauline Turner, who said, "I never get dizzy."

She moved from one apartment house, by request, because she would "tap-dance on the window sill." Now, poor girl, tap dancing on the window sill of a hotel, fourth floor, she has fallen and killed herself. What moral do you find in that? Possibly a warning for professors and others who are doing the "billion dollar tap dance, 500,000 feet up in the air," and think it can last forever without financial dizziness.

Two Russian aeronauts, claiming the world's altitude record for open gondola balloons, say they went up more than thirty-four thousand feet. Eighty per cent of the way up, they heard "an unexplainable noise like the passing of a train." It was possibly an imaginary noise, produced by diminishing atmospheric pressure, but all kinds of queer things may be found far up, when the deep sea fish we call men rise to the top of their atmospheric ocean and look out.

G-MEN PROBE CRIME CASH IN BOSTON

(Copyright, 1935, by the Boston Evening American)

Working secretly in Boston and other big cities of the nation, G-men are exposing the money-power behind organized crime.

Out of the nation-wide survey will come a new federal system of bonding criminals which will eliminate straw bail, reduce defaults and show at a glance those who supply the financial backing that permits public enemies their freedom.

Although the drive is primarily of a corrective nature, several criminal prosecutions may result here where worthless straw bail, it was found, was posted for the freedom of accused dope and rum smugglers.

As part of the Department of Justice campaign against crime, a survey of bonds posted for the liberty of federal prisoners during the past 11 years was quietly begun more than three months ago.

It reached Boston this week.

From Washington came special agents under Special Assistant Attorney-General Joseph B. Keenan, in charge of crime investigation for Attorney-General Homer Cummings.

37 CASES UNDER PROBE

Twenty-seven major cases in the federal district court here were selected for investigation.

They involve 150 defendants in dope and rum ring cases for whom was posted a total of approximately $750,000 in bail.

Not a few of these defendants defaulted and the surety posted for them was found on investigation to be far less than its face value. Straws were found.

Comparatively few defendants were convicted.

One bonding company was found to have handled more than 80

Mrs. Goodwin Dies Suddenly

Mrs. Mary Brown Goodwin, wife of Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin, died suddenly at Boston City Hospital today.

Death was caused by a heart attack. She had been taken to the hospital late last night for treatment and observation.

Doctors did not consider her condition critical at that time, and had planned to keep her in the hospital for a few days.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brown of East Boston. She was 60 years old.

The Goodwins were married in 1896. They had two sons, Carl and Fred, both of whom are married.

TWO GIRLS ATTACKED

Malden Children, Each 8, Lured Into Woods, Battle Man

Two little Malden girls were snatched from the street, carried into the woods and brutally beaten by a man, police reported today in a general alarm broadcast by teletype.

Victims of the attack were June Donovan, eight, of 73 Maynard street, and Betty Stover, eight, of 21 Springdale street.

They were snatched from Oliver street, Malden, near the Hunting athletic field and the Revere city line, carried into the woods and there an attempt was made to attack them.

June was hit on the head, suffering a deep scalp wound, and was bitten on both hands as she fought with her assailant and tried to scratch his face.

Betty was beaten on the head and shoulder with a rock.

Betty's scream attracted the attention of her grandfather, Charles E. Foster, of 194 Oliver street, who was gardening nearby.

Snatching up a pitchfork, the grandfather ran into the woods.

Shares Hit New Highs

By International News Service

New York, June 21—The stock market surged forward today to the best levels since 1931 with gains running to more than $2 a share as traders resumed operations in the belief the President's "soak the rich" tax program would be snagged in Congress.

Trading was at a fast pace and at one time the ticker fell several minutes behind the market as the advance broadened. The pace slowed in the late dealings but recessions were rare.

Leaders in today's advance included Chrysler, General Motors, Westinghouse, J. I. Case, American Telephone, American Can, Standard Oil of N. J., U. S. Smelting, American Tobacco B, and Dupont.

Woman Quits in Shortage

Milton, Vt., June 21 (AP)—Town authorities said today Mrs. Gertrude Lombard, 32, town treasurer since 1927, had tendered her resignation. Auditors are investigating an alleged shortage of $3000 in her accounts.

Eli Oarsmen Win First 2

New London, Ct., June 21—Yale's junior varsity and freshmen shells defeated Harvard today in the preliminaries to the big varsity classic on the Thames this evening.

The Blue freshmen staged the most exciting finish seen in many years at the annual regatta when they trailed their Crimson rivals for almost two miles to put on a tremendous spurt to finish in front by a scant three feet.

The Junior Varsity race was even closer though not as thrilling.

In this race Yale took an early lead, with the Crimson oarsmen at their stern.

Positions remained the same until in the last 100 yards Harvard increased its stroke, gradually to eat up the distance separating the two [illegible].

Yale equalled the Harvard effort and managed to cross the finish line inches in front.

President Roosevelt was among the spectators.

1 DEAD, 14 HURT In Lumber Riot

Eureka, Cal., June 21 (INS)—One striking lumber worker was killed, five others were probably fatally injured, and a dozen other men were seriously injured in a big log riot between strikers and police here today.

Six policemen were among the seriously injured.

Lowell, June 21 (AP)—Mayor James J. Bryan today announced that the Jay Shoe Co. of Marlboro, employing 500, would locate in Lowell about August 1.

Revere Train Kills Woman

Struck by a Narrow Gauge train and dragged 15 feet at the Oak Island station, Revere, today, Mrs. Harriet Freeman, 60, of Quincy terrace, Roxbury, was fatally injured.

She was rushed to the Massachusetts General Hospital and pronounced dead upon arrival.

Mrs. Freeman, accompanied by Mrs. Johanna DeMartin of DeWolfe place, Cambridge, was waiting on the platform for a Boston train, and apparently stood too near the track.

The women had been staying at Mothers' Rest, a summer cottage operated in Revere by the Episcopal City Mission.

HEWETT DIVORCE O. K.'d in Cambridge

Roger Sherman Hewett, Cambridge electrical engineer, today won an uncontested divorce from Evelyn B. Hewett, now of the Parnassus Club, New York, in Middlesex Probate Court.

He told Judge Arthur E. Beane that his wife, whom he wed in 1925, left him in 1931, and, although he made three trips to see her in New York, she refused to return.

Mrs. Mary H. Jacobson of Melrose won a divorce on grounds of cruelty from Alfred L. Jacobson of Malden.

Building Up 11 P. C.

Washington, June 21 (INS)—Although weekly factory payrolls declined by $3,900,000 in May, as compared with April, private building construction increased 11.2 per cent for the same period, the Labor Department reported today.

KILLER HANGS HIS HOPE ON ODD PLEA

Trenton, N. J., June 21—The sleeping suit in which Baby Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., snuggled on the night he was kidnaped and slain today became the legal talisman on which Bruno Richard Hauptmann pinned his last hope of escaping the New Jersey death chair.

In the hands of New Jersey's Court of Errors and Appeals, fourteen veteran arbiters of life and death, was Hauptmann's fate today. Arguments for and against a new trial for the convicted killer were concluded late yesterday.

It was on the sleeping suit that Hauptmann's main hope was based —the sleeping suit and the legal points that revolve around it.

Court observers believe the element of premeditation necessary to a first degree murder conviction may depend on whether or not the death of the infant occurred during commission of a felony.

SUIT BECOMES VITAL

Thus, the high tribunal is faced with two diametrically opposing arguments. They are:

The State—Contends the theft of the sleeping suit constituted a felony.

The Defense—Insists, under an old statute, that unless the garment was worth $20 or more, no felony was committed.

Lean, scholarly Egbert Roscrans, the bookish member of the Hauptmann defense counsel, stood before the legal sharks of the appeal bench and triumphantly told them yesterday the Lindbergh sleeping suit certainly was not worth $20, and Hauptmann therefore was innocent.

Roscrans insisted Justice Thomas W. Trenchard's charge to the jury at Flemington last Winter had been misleading on this point, and that, consequently, Hauptmann, waiting hopefully in the death house two miles from the scene of hearing, was entitled to a new trial.

JUDGES' REACTION

When Joseph Lanigan, assistant attorney-general who helped to convict Hauptmann of the century's most famous crime, presented the State's contention on this phase, Justice Harry Hebard retorted snappily:

"Mr. Lanigan, I don't see the value of your argument on that point?"

The Court of Errors and Appeals then exhibited much of a flurry as it ever permits itself.

White-haired Justice Charles W. Parker rose and majestically moved to book shelves on the wall of the beautiful colonial chamber and lugged law books over to Justice Heher's desk.

Other jurists rose, examined legal tomes, and sauntered back to their seats, their ebony robes sweeping majestically along the thick, wine-red carpet.

While Lanigan continued his argument along other lines, they talked audibly with each other, fingering the 12 volumes of Hauptmann case testimony that lay before each jurist, obviously impressed with the sleeping suit and burglary tools, which may yet save the Bronx carpenter from the chair.

CITES CHANGE IN THEORY

Roscerans ended his final plea for Hauptmann, however, on another note—that the man's constitutional rights had been violated in the fiery summation with which Attorney-General Wilentz concluded the State's case.

Hauptmann had been bullied and taunted, Roscerans said, in the attorney-general's final speech to the jury.

Wilentz, he insisted, had injected matter outside the evidence, charges that never were proved against Hauptmann, to obtain the State's ultimate triumph—a conviction with penalty of death.

He declared, also, that Wilentz had started his case on the theory that Baby Lindbergh fell to his death as Hauptmann descended the ladder on that blustery night of March 1, 1932, and then in his closing address, he changed his accusations and placed the baby's death right in the nursery. To illustrate, Roscerans cited excerpts from Wilentz' summation:

". . . He smothered and choked that child right in that room. He took no chances.

"What was the chisel for? To knock the child into insensibility in that room. Then down he comes.

"The child is dead. He had crushed that child before he came down the ladder."

The justices, however, appeared somewhat skeptical of this argument.

Said Justice Clarence Case (a defense lawyer in the celebrated Hall-Mills case of nine years ago):

"Did they connect the defendant with the chisel?"

"Yes," replied Roscerans.

"Well, then, the Attorney General had a right to make a conclusion about the purpose to which he intended to put the chisel."

And the other justices leaned back in their mahogany chairs, waiting for more arguments from the pale Roscerans.

When the long and largely technical arguments ceased, Chancellor Luther Campbell, presiding, revealed that the court will not actually start consideration of Hauptmann's fate for 20 days, due to submission of supplementary briefs by both sides.

DECIDE IN AUTUMN

The jurists probably will not decide until September whether the carpenter who played the stock market with Lindbergh blood money is to have a new trial.

If they decide against him, he'll be resentenced by Justice Trenchard, who presided at Flemington.

Then he will probably carry his plea to the Court of Pardons, on which Governor Hoffman sits.

This body may commute the death sentence to life imprisonment.

If they refuse clemency, Hauptmann may appeal to the United States Supreme Court.

On the plump and meticulously tailored shoulders of Edward J. Reilly of Brooklyn, who headed the defense counsel during the trial, Hauptmann's defenders cast much of the blame for legal oversights about which the justices quizzed them.

Reilly was ousted by Mrs. Hauptmann several months ago. He countered by suing Hauptmann for $25,000 of the defense fund.

Citing long extracts from Attorney-General Wilentz's "unfair" summation, Roscerans declared the violation of Hauptmann's constitutional rights involved was not to be condoned merely because defense lawyers at the time failed to take legal exceptions.

DIDN'T OBJECT THEN

"Neither by ignorance of counsel nor neglect of counsel can constitutional rights be waived," declared Roscerans. "The fact that counsel failed to take an exception in every instance makes no difference."

"Weren't you in court?" asked one jurist. "Didn't you object?"

"No," replied Roscerans in a low tone. Hesitating a moment, he then said: "I'd like to answer that, if I may. Mr. Reilly was the chief counsel at the time."

There was a long pause.

Then—"Didn't you owe a duty to the court, to the state, to the defendant?" asked another justice.

"Certainly I did. But maybe I was motivated by things that I can't explain. Maybe I was neglectful. Maybe I was ignorant, nevertheless the defendant's rights must be protected."

The justices glanced rather coldly at Roscerans, and, closing those cryptic remarks, he switched to another line of attack on the verdict of the Hunterdon County Jury which found Hauptmann a killer.

The orderly, dignified proceeding, which moved with rapid but quiet tempo throughout the day, was in striking contrast to the hurly-burly at Flemington last winter, when judge, jury and spectators gasped for breath in a sardine-packed courtroom.

Except for a few reporters, attorneys and friends of Governor Hoffman, no spectators were admitted to the hearing.

There were no uniforms inside the defendant present; no machine, no display of badges; no atmosphere of crime as in a murder trial courtroom — august and weighty legal thinking was obviously the only occupation permitted in these precincts.

Even Mrs. Anna Hauptmann, the convicted carpenter's faithful yellow haired wife, was not present.

Captain John J. Lamb, fearing she might disturb the serenity of the court with an outcry, as she did once at Flemington, refused to admit her.

Later the court consented to her being admitted if she wished, but by that time she was in a taxi enroute to visit her husband in the death house.

Frederick A. Pope, whose expert research on the kidnap ladder, and its ponderoso pine earned him the nickname of "Ponderoso Pope," produced his famous boards in court.

They were the well-known "old board and new board that match like one," which intrigued jurors at Hauptmann's Flemington trial.

They intrigued the lofty jurists on their tiers of benches as much as they had the Hunterdon County farmers.

All leaned forward like boys playing detective, when Pope flicked his boards before them and talked at length about grain and sap streak in his best, finger-wagging Flemington manner.

Attorney-General Wilentz, blackgarbed and dapper as ever, made heated denials that his bitter summation had been legally improper, and insisted the defense had been as vitriolic and as rambling as he'd been at his worst.

And while the arguments were going on, Hauptmann remained the court with an outcry, as she did once at Flemington, refused to admit her.

Later the court consented to her being admitted if she wished, but by that time she was in a taxi enroute to visit her husband in the death house.

WOMEN PICKET ERA OFFICES, HIT ROTCH

Carrying signs against the ERA and with box-lunches under their arms, 25 unmarried women, headed by Miss Florence Birmingham, devoted this afternoon to picketing ERA headquarters at 80 Federal street.

"Rotch Gets $8000 a Year—Why Can't Single Women Get ERA Jobs?" "Relationships and Friendships Make Jobs in the ERA," "ERA Workers Afraid to Tell All" and "Spinsters Starve Under ERA" were some of the slogans on the signs.

The women held them aloft as they paraded downtown streets.

The marchers, whose leader has been waging a "rough on Rotch" campaign for some time, assembled earlier in the day at Tremont Temple.

From there they marched in double formation to Rotch's headquarters.

Miss Birmingham, president of the Massachusetts Women's Political Club, announced:

"We and everybody else know that single women are being discriminated against by ERA."

Just as Miss Birmingham concluded an ultimatum: "We're staying here all day," Administrator Rotch sauntered out of the entrance and went to lunch.

Other callers on Rotch today included throngs of men and women seeking to register for work following Rotch's announcement the "relief" or welfare phase of federal employment would be wiped out in the new WPA.

Francis J. O'Neil, 61, of Clyde street, Belmont, an insurance agent, arraigned today in Waltham court on charges of larceny of $1500 to $2000 from a client, was held in bonds of $3000 for trial June 26.

O'Neil is charged with larceny from Anthony Russo of Lexington street, Watertown.

KARL KITCHEN Dies in New York

New York, June 21 (INS)—Karl K. Kitchen, author and newspaperman, died in St. Luke's Hospital today following a brief illness. Double pneumonia developed after he had suffered from septic poisoning.

Kitchen, a native of Cleveland, was born March 2, 1885. He was the author of "The Night Side of Europe" and "After Dark in the War Capitals."

RELIEF COST FIGURES NEAR 8000 MILLION DOLLARS

By International News Service

Washington, June 21—Through state, municipal and other political and governmental division participation, the federal administration expects to boost the four thousand million dollar works-relief program to one exceeding six thousand millions.

If local bodies assume their share of the burden of putting 3,500,000 employables from the relief roles to work, the works-relief fund may be more than doubled—passing the stupendous figure of eight thousand million dollars, officials said.

On the basis of the government providing 45 per cent of the cost of public works projects by grants, and municipalities and other recipients providing the other 55 per cent, the $900,000,000 public works program alone would be increased 50 per cent.

EXPANDED FIGURES

Approximately half of the PWA projects are expected to be federal, in which local bodies share no cost.

The other half would be non-federal, on which 45 per cent grants would be made by the government, and 55 per cent provided by local bodies, either from their own funds, or by loans from private capital, or loans from the revolving fund established, from the carry-over of the 1933-35 public works program.

Under the original $3,300,000,000 public works program, approximately one-third went to the CCC, PWA, FERA and other governmental agencies, one-third went for non-federal loan and grant projects, and one-third for federal projects.

With CCC, FERA, rural resettlement, and other agencies provided for in separate funds, PWA officials anticipate that the $900,000,000 set-marked by Congress for PWA will be approximately evenly divided between federal and non-federal projects.

With $450,000,000 for non-federal projects, allotable on a 45 per cent basis, municipalities and other bodies would thus raise approximately $550,000,000 to add to the funds for providing employment.

HOPKINS STATEMENT

Works Progress Administrator Harry L. Hopkins asserted the administration expects states, municipalities and other bodies to provide "a much larger share" under the new program.

Since the cost of projects must be based on a pay scale of $1140 per worker per year, Hopkins said:

"Where projects call for more than $1140 per man per year, they can be done when the 55 per cent of the cost does not come from the federal work relief fund.

"We will get a much larger amount from the municipalities and other local bodies than we have had on work relief projects."

If local bodies provide 55 per cent of the cost of all projects, on the average, the four thousand million dollar fund would be more than doubled, officials explained.

Vandenberg Warns U. S. Of Constitution "Cheat"

By Universal Service

Washington, June 21—In a blistering attack upon President Roosevelt's hint at revision of the Constitution, Senator Vandenberg (R.) of Michigan warned the American people any change in the fundamental character of that document would send the republic "to join the rest of the world in ashes of democracy."

Speaking over a nationwide radio hook-up, Vandenberg pleaded for "unyielding resistance to all attempts to cheat the Constitution without changing it."

The President "in a burst of gloom" announced the Supreme Court's opinion invalidating NRA had thrown American back to "horse and buggy days," Vandenberg said, warning:

"Manifestly, it must be nullification or amendment if most of them new collectivism shall persist."

LONG LIFE

Lindy, Carrel Work on Longevity Device

New York, June 21—Man's dream since time immemorial, the discovery of Ponce de Leon's fountain of perpetual youth, is near realization today.

And credit for inventing an amazing apparatus that may make man physically immortal is given to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh.

His genius and the medical knowledge and direction of Dr. Alexis Carrel, Nobel prize winner, are giving this priceless prize to the world.

Full details of their research are related in "Science," the official publication of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

They have been able, by means of a "Lindbergh Pump," to conduct a series of successful experiments in the culture of animal organs outside the body.

Organs Kept Alive

They have taken spleens, kidneys, thyroids, ovaries and suprarenal glands, removed them from animals an hour after they had been bled to death, and made these organisms live indefinitely.

In all science's previous experience, such organs had lived but a short time in artificial conditions.

The Lindbergh pump, however, described as a mechanically perfect apparatus of glass which serves as heart and lungs, prevents any infection from taking place.

Thus animal organs—and man's physical makeup is animal—can be cultured and kept alive while they grow. Circulation is produced.

Full import of this history-making achievement can only be realized by considering that if organs can be kept alive indefinitely outside the body, it is only a step to keeping them alive inside the body.

That, in a word, is immortality.

First authentic corroboration of reports that Colonel Lindbergh has been assiduously and quietly engaging in scientific research with Dr. Carrel came with the publication of the technical details of their 26 joint experiments.

Colonel Lindbergh, however, had previously been known for scientific contributions of higher importance outside the aviation field. In 1931, he published an account of an apparatus he had devised at the Rockefeller Institute for the washing of blood corpuscles and similar particles.

Wins Applause

That invention won applause from seasoned laboratory workers, and it was no secret that Colonel Lindbergh's active interest in research continued even during the harrowing circumstances connected with his baby's kidnaping and the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann. It has been suggested that his recent severance of connections with a trans-continental air line is indicative of his concentration on laboratory work.

Details of the Carrel-Lindbergh experiments with the removal, growth and development of organs removed from cats, fowl and other animals, were revealed as follows in the joint report:

"The ultimate purposes of the new method are these: The manufacture in vitro (outside the body) of the secretions or hormones of the endocrine glands. The isolation of the substance essential to the growth of the body, differentiation and functional activity of those glands.

"The discovery of the laws of the association of the organs. The production outside the body of organic and arterial diseases. The treatment of these diseases."

JOBLESS Rush to Quit RELIEF

SEEK TO JOIN WPA PAYROLL

Works Progress Administrator Arthur G. Rotch's announcement that the "relief" or welfare phase of federal employment will be wiped out in the new WPA, brought a rush of registrants today.

Throughout the various municipalities and at federal re-employment headquarters, throngs of men and women who hesitated to apply for ERA work sought jobs.

Just how many of them will get employment remains a conjecture, however. Administrator Rotch stated that first the 114,000 ERA workers must be transferred into the WPA field.

Following them will be considered those who had applied for ERA jobs prior to May 1. Later registrants are next.

The WPA brings pay raises and a 40-hour week for all workers on approved projects, Rotch said. The WPA program will be in effect in Massachusetts on August 1.

All Employes

Thereafter, he stressed, all workers will be considered employes of the national government instead of recipients of federal emergency aid.

At the same time, Administrator Rotch stated that municipalities will be required to furnish materials wherever possible, and that where this is impossible approval from Washington must be received before a WPA project is approved.

The state is to be divided into six districts: 1—Essex County; 2—Middlesex and Norfolk Counties, plus Revere, Chelsea and Winthrop; 3—Boston; 4—Plymouth, Barnstable, Duke and Nantucket Counties; 5—Worcester County; 6—Hampden, Hampshire, Franklin and Berkshire Counties.

Pay scales for unskilled laborers range from $55 to $40 a month; for intermediate classes, $65 to $45 a month; for skilled labor, $85 to $55; for technical and professional workers, $94 to $61. Pay is graduated according to population.

Dr. Murlin, B.U. Ex-Head, Dies

Dr. L. H. Murlin, 73, president of Boston University from 1911 to 1920, died in Wayland, Mich., after a brief illness, it was announced here today.

Prominent as a Methodist churchman, Dr. Murlin was president of two other universities, heading Baker University in Kansas from 1894 to 1911, and De Pauw at Greencastle, Ind., from 1926 to 1928.

HUSBAND LATE, She Takes Poison

Four small children waited in their South Walnut street home in Quincy today for news of their mother and father, who were under treatment in Quincy Hospital. John Lorina, their father, was rushed there for an emergency operation directly from his work at Fore River shipyard.

Mrs. Theresa Lorina, their mother, waited for him to come home to supper. When he failed to appear she swallowed poison, police said.

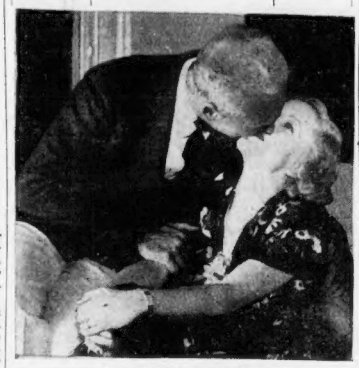
Millions Spent on Wives



'Almost an' Asbestos Bride

CLAIRE WINDSOR

One, two, three, four—count 'em—blonde wives.
Now possibly a fifth.
In between, ever so many blonde infatuations.
Has Thomas Franklyn Manville, Jr., a blonde complex?
The asbestos fortune heir says he will divorce blonde Marcelle Edwards, with whom he "settled down" in 1933 and possibly wed again. Rumor says No. 5 will be blonde Collette Francis. Tommy won't say, but Marcelle refuses to go the way of all Manville wives. She still loves him, she says, and wants him to come home.

When they were married in 1933 Manville told the world Marcelle had "everything." The Earl Carroll beauty who became

LOIS McCOIN (NO. 2)

No. 4 had (1) a gorgeous figure; (2) was romantic, lovable, devoted, divine; (3) a perfect lady and a perfect hostess; (4) appreciative, understanding, broad-minded; (5) had all qualities which will "make her a wonderful mother for our children."

"Yes sir," said Manville, "for the first time in my married life I'm thinking seriously of becoming a daddy. It's all agreed between us."

Two short years later, Manville is talking of divorcing the woman who was to become the mother of his children.

If he does, it will be his fourth divorce. Here's what happened to the others:

AVONNE TAYLOR (NO. 3)

MARCELLE EDWARDS (NO. 4)

"suffered seemingly intolerable hardships with great fortitude";

Lois McCoin (No 2) His father's secretary, he married her "chiefly to please the old gentleman";

Avonne Taylor (No. 3) "Apparently had everything I sought, but didn't click with my friends and family";

Marcelle Edwards (No. 4) She made a mistake of raiding his hotel room;

His first three marital adventures cost Manville $2,500,000, he once admitted. In between their were costly friendships, such as the one with Claire Windsor, film actress. She was to have been No. 4, but somehow it did.'t jell.

Tommy pays each of his former wives $1000 a month. Marcelle doesn't want it. She doesn't want a separation, legal or otherwise.

But Tommy is said to want Collette.

SMILES IN DEATH BANDIT BEHEADED

LAST OF CORSICAN GANG

By International News Service

Bastia, Corsica, June 21—Smiling and courageous, Andre Spada, "last of the Corsican bandits," went to his death under the guillotine's blade here this morning.

Killer, robber and heart-breaker, Spada lay his head on the block with the confident:

"I'm going straight to Paradise."

He accepted stoically the law he had sought to enforce in his vengeful career—a life for a life.

Awakened at 3:15 by the advocate-general's quiet:

"Spada, your last hour has come; have courage." Spada said:

"Don't worry. I have plenty of courage. I'm not afraid of the guillotine."

He dressed himself, particularly insisting on wearing his new brown shoes.

Rejecting the traditional glass of rum and cigarette, he walked erect and without aids ahead of his guards.

He stepped quickly up to the platform, bowed while a black hood was put over his head, and in a moment the knife had fallen.

At his trial in March it took the judge an hour and a half to read the list of murders, holdups and love affairs that had filled Spada's long career of crime, in which he terrorized Napoleon's isle.

Tearing down the Robin Hood legend that had grown up around Spada, the prosecutor branded him as an ignorant, vicious criminal, whose murders were motivated by vengeance.

His criminal career began in 1923 when he was 24. He killed a police officer and aided in the escape of Rutili, notorious bandit.

In 1932 as a powerful gang leader Spada defied the French government to capture him. Within 10 months he was captured.

His death sentence followed trial for killing a girl he believed had spurned his attentions.

Asks Hospital Probe

Fall River, June 21—Edward C. Pierce, chairman of the investigating committee, will ask either District Attorney William C. Crossley of the legislature to probe conditions at the Bristol County Tuberculosis Hospital in Attleboro.

Couple Saved In Auto Plunge

Framingham, June 21—Trapped in the tonneau of their car, a young couple narrowly escaped drowning when their auto plunged through a fence and into the reservoir here.

The two, Miss Helen Davis, 22, of East street, this city, and Gerard P. Long of B street, Hopkinton, saved themselves by clambering through a window of the auto onto the roof of the car.

Knee-deep in water their cries for assistance were heard by passers-by who summoned police.

Rescued, they were found to be suffering shock and immersion.

SAMARITAN Loses Truck, Cash

Goshen, Conn., June 21 (AP)—John K. Foster had a good heart. He picked up a hitch-hiker, gave him a job and started him out with a truckload of milk and $2. The truck was found in Canada, abandoned.

Pinned to the seat was a note which read: "Gone for gas. Be back later."

BOAT CAPSIZES Man Drowns

Franklin, N. H., June 21—John A. Boyle, 30, was drowned when his collapsible boat, which he was trying out for the first time, capsized 200 yards off shore. Boyle was on a fishing party in Bradley Lake, Andover.

Pastor Scores Divorces In Roosevelt Family

By Universal Service

Jersey City, N. J., June 21—Divorcees over the country who might have felt in their conscience "insecure" in further marriages, now feel a security because of two divorces and remarriages in the family of the "First House in Our Land," the United Lutheran Synod of New York was told here.

Although the White House occupants were not mentioned, the Rev. Dr. F. E. Oberlander, Manhattan pastor, left no doubt that he was talking about Elliott Roosevelt and Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall Boettiger.

He said:

"I believe it is largely due to the fact that there have been two divorces that startled our country in what people call the first house of our land that all over the country divorcees who have remarried now feel a security.

"One of the members of the family had a second marriage arranged even before the divorce decree was granted. And shortly afterward he was married outside his church. Then a few months later his sister passed through the same mill. That startled a great many people and it made many feel a security in divorce.

"Divorce has gotten to be a cancer on the public welfare. I believe now is the time when our Lutheran church has got to put her foot down and stop this tremendous evil that is wrecking our homes."

The synod accepted a report condemning divorce and remarriage.

Faith Cabot on Honeymoon

Honolulu will be both the setting for the honeymoon of Lieutenant Douglas B. Brokenshire and his bride, the former Miss Faith Cabot, of Boston, and their home for the next two years.

Mrs. Brokenshire was graduated from Simmons College last week, while Lieutenant Brokenshire was being graduated from Annapolis.

The wedding was performed in New Haven. The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Chilton Cabot, of Boston.

Other Bostonians who attended were Mrs. Polen Cabot, Mr. and Mrs. Chancellor Blake, Mr. and Mrs. Stephens Cabot, and the bride's three sisters, the Misses Barbara, Mary and Eleanore.

CONGRESS IN DOUBT ABOUT SPEEDING NEW TAX BILL

By Associated Press

Washington, June 21—Democratic legislators, uncertain as to whether President Roosevelt would like his proposals for new taxes on the wealthy enacted now or later, indicated today they were planning to ask him about it.

If the program should be postponed until next session, it would be thrown into the 1936 campaign.

Some confidants of the President already have indicated he is ready to press his plan through the presidential campaign—thus making it a major issue.

But there was much confusion as to whether the White House would prefer immediate passage — and Democratic leaders apparently were divided as to the practicability of obtaining action this session on a program which includes such major proposals as higher taxes on large incomes, both individual and corporate, and heavy levies on inheritances.

WHITE HOUSE SILENT

There was no immediate denial of a report that the President soon would send a letter to Chairman Harrison (D), Miss., of the Senate finance committee, informing him the new program was not necessarily for immediate consideration.

After conferring with Charles Michaelson, publicity director for the Democratic national committee, Speaker Byrns issued a statement that the presidential message was a "practical chart" for a tax bill that Congress will have to enact "sooner or later" to meet emergency expenditures.

"I have no doubt," he said, "that when the matter goes directly before Congress it will fall r the President's lead."

Though the Senate finance committee yesterday rejected a move by Senator LaFollette (P.), Wisconsin, to attach a series of "wider distribution of wealth" taxes to a bill extending $500,000,000 in nuisance taxes, LaFollette was planning to offer his plan from the floor, possibly next week.

LONG BACKS LAFOLLETTE

LaFollette has praised the President's tax message, and the amendments were his idea of how Mr. Roosevelt's general suggestions should be carried out.

LaFollette's tax plan will be supported by Senator Long (D.), Louisianat who expressed skepticism about the President's message and said he wanted to "put the New Deal crowd on the spot."

Senator Thomas (D.), Oklahoma, said:

"If the House passes a tax bill it is very likely that an effort to attach a bonus rider will be made in the Senate. What this country needs is more money in circulation and payment of the bonus is one way to accomplish that."

G-MEN PROBING BAIL RACKET

per cent of the bail for rum runners in this district for four and one-half years.

This company had headquarters in Chicago and eight branches, one in Boston, and operated as the bonding agent for some of the nation's biggest public enemies.

This company and another went on the bonds of 75 per cent of combined dope and rum cases.

BIG BOND FIRMS FAIL

Three major bonding companies in the East have failed since January 11, 1934, the survey revealed.

In many cases they left in the hands of the federal government, as surely for the court appearance of accused criminals, property worth but a small percentage of its purported value.

As a result of the survey the United States government will put in force in the federal courts a bail system similar to that used by the state courts in Massachusetts, Michigan and California.

Every professional bondsman will operate only with the registration of a United States marshal under this system.

The investigation here shows that United States Commissioner Edwin C. Jenney was the first in the federal courts of the nation to require cash or secured bail for defendants in narcotic cases.

A national card index system of federal court defendants, which will show at a glance the nature of the bail posted for each in whatever city, and the identity of those supplying bonds, will be established by the Department of Justice.

Certain bonding groups have been tabbed as representatives of certain gangs and where there appearance is noted in behalf of a defendant, that defendant will be immediately associated, in suspici onat least, with the gang and illegal enterprise with which the bondsman is coupled.

DEFENSE VITAL, SAYS WOMAN

Miss Adelaide L. Fitzgerald, chairman of the national defense committee, today urged the convention of the American Legion Auxiliary at the New Ocean House, Swampscott, to further the belief in adequate national defense.

She suggested that the women start a campaign to make Massachusetts women "defense conscious."

She said:

"There is a great antagonism to national defense by supposedly good citizens in America who believe in peace at any cost.

"Let us go out and promulgate a constructive program of national defense which will be both logical and appealing to sincere, honest citizens."

POLICE AID BOY TO VISIT ITALY

Dominico Di Carlo, 16, of 114 Charles street, Cambridge, is one youngster who thinks police officers are just "swell."

Dominico, graduating from St. Francis Assisi School, East Cambridge, had been awarded a prize for proficiency in the Italian language, with a two months' trip to Italy at the expense of the Italian government.

The boy's father work on the ERA. His mother is dead. He had no money for clothing to make the trip.

Frank Madello, of Hurley street, Cambridge, who heard the story, told Police Chief Timothy Leahy, who made a contribution. So did other officers, and enough money was collected to outfit Dominico for the trip.

Burgin Ousts Health Chief

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin of Quincy today ousted Health Commissioner Edmund Fitzgerald, who had held the office during three years of the Ross administration.

In his place Mayor Burgin appointed Dr. Richard Ash of Greenleaf street. Dr. Ash is a Tufts graduate and a member of the staff of Quincy Hospital. He is married and has four children.

Mayor Burgin also asked for the resignation of Dr. Israel Edelstein, city physician. Dr. Edelstein was recently arrested in connection with automobile fraud cases.

The mayor approved the appointment of William I. Lowe of West Elm street as an inspector for the city during the building of a wing to the North Quincy High School.

Bogus Police Get His $755

Worcester, June 21—Two holdup men, posing as police officers, today robbed Ahmed Hassan, 51, of Belmont street, of his life savings of $755.

Entering his room as he slept, the men informed Hassan that he was to be deported. They tied his hands behind his back and took him into another room while they searched for his hidden cash.

Held as Embezzler

Mrs. Edith G. Leslie, 29, of 511 Mystic avenue parkway, Somerville, is to be arraigned in Medford court today on charges of embezzlement.

CURLEY BRANDS U. S. COLLEGES AIDING REDS

Universities "openly advocating internationalism, Bolshevism and Communism" were denounced by Governor Curley in a stirring address to more than a thousand persons gathered at the American Legion Auxiliary convention in Swampscott.

He expressed amazement at the open hostility to the teachers' oath measure which he said was manifested at the Harvard 299th Commencement.

It is time, he declared, that some method was adopted to insist on Americanism by the educated element.

Of the Harvard program where, as governor of Massachusetts he was guest of honor, he said:

"I withheld from discussion because I did not wish to engage in a controversy on such an occasion."

Harvard, Governor Curley asserted, is not alone in its hostility to measures calling for saluting the American flag and taking the oath of allegiance to the Constitution. He said:

"SLIGHTING REMARKS"

"There are other universities throughout the country professing the same hostility. It is not confined wholly to the students.

"In the present situation many of the schools have remained passive, while in others pacifism and internationalism—even Bolshevism and Communism—have openly been taught.

"Professors as well as students have taken part in many of the demonstrations. It is imperative that this situation be corrected."

Governor Curley said that during his visit to Harvard he could not fail to notice the "slighting remarks" made. Speakers of the day touched upon the teachers' oath and allegiance program "none too lightly" he asserted.

"I do not believe that the taking of his oath should give offense to anyone who takes it.

"This country has been exceedingly good to those who are native born and those who are foreign born.

"The least that persons can do is to respect the flag of the nation in which they earn their livelihood.

"If they do not respect the flag, then the growth of Bolshevism and Communism will be less.

DROPS SENATE HINT

The governor's address was greeted with thunderous applause which burst into an open demonstration when he continued and referred to going "to higher office" when he left Beacon Hill.

This latter remark was received as his first pointed announcement that he would seek the U. S. Senate seat held by Senator Marcus Coolidge.

The hint of his political plans came as Governor Curley was telling the Legion auxiliaries and their guests that he intended to launch a legislative program for a $3,000,000 memorial to the war dead.

CONVICT TRIO Flee Joliet

Joliet, Ill., June 21 (AP)—Three convicts scaled the wall of the Illinois state prison today and escaped. They were Jack Ellis, Vernon Guthrie and George White, all committed from Cook County for larceny.

They were last seen heading awards Lockport, Ill.

Both Sides in Fight Over Teachers' Oath

Harvard commencement critics of the teachers' oath bill were answered by Governor Curley in a stirring address before the American Legion auxiliary, during which he accused many colleges of teaching Communism. Here are both sides:

PRES. NEILSON

President William Allen Neilson of Smith College in address at Harvard commencement:

"I object to being made a member of a suspect profession which alone has been singled out for attack.

"The requirement of the bill (teachers' oath) is in itself innocuous and futile.

"It is lamentable that resistance to such legislation is being left largely to the official heads of our universities.

"President Conant has shown himself as of the true Harvard tradition in leading such resistence in Massachusetts.

"But where have the alumni all been?

"Had the graduates of Harvard College realized what was at stake, these miserable and silly performances never would have triumphed in our legislature."

(President Neilson was born in Scotland and married a German woman, according to Who's Who.)

GOV. CURLEY

Governor James M. Curley at the American Legion Auxiliary Convention:

"I do not believe that the taking of this oath should give offense to anyone.

"The least that persons can do is to respect the flag of the nation in which they earn their livelihood.

"If they do respect the flag, then the growth of Communism will be less.

"Let those who think that some other form of government is better than the government of the United States go back to the countries where they found that government.

"There are other universities (besides Harvard) throughout the country professing the same hostility. It is not confined wholly to students.

"Many of the schools have remained passive while in others pacifism and internationalism—even Bolshevism — have been openly taught."

OATH BILL WINS AGAIN

Foes Fail to Block Measure as Senate Speeds It Toward Enactment

The teachers' oath bill was passed along to its final stage today after the Senate, ignoring obstruction tactics, voted 16 to 8 against reconsideration.

Calling for an oath of allegiance to the Constitution by teachers, instructors and professors, the bill was sent to the House for enactment.

Senate enactment and Governor Curley's signature will follow.

Although the enactment stage of any measure is usually perfunctory and mechanical, propaganda against the bill is expected to result in further efforts to block it.

Spearhead of the bill's opponents, Senator Henry Parkman, Jr., made another futile attempt to amend it after the Senate action of yesterday concurring in two House amendments.

PARKMAN CHALLENGED

Out of courtesy to Parkman yesterday, the bill was not immediately returned to the House. Today he asked permission to propose and read a new amendment.

President James G. Moran, leader of the proponents, refused to allow the proposal to be submitted and limited arguments to reconsideration.

Parkman's sincerity was challenged by Senator Thomas Burke, Boston, who said the former, with a Lord's prayer amendment, had tried the same tactics to kill the pledge of allegiance bill recently enacted.

TO CURB RADICALS

Burke charged:

"It's nothing but a game for the purpose of delay as pressure may be brought on those voting for the bill."

He praised the Senate supporters for standing fast in the face of propaganda and pressure seeking defeat of the measure.

And he declared once again that some kind of check is needed for professors who are expounding bad philosophy in the colleges.

Senator Charles G. Miles of Boston, chairman of the education committee, and Senator William S. Conroy, Fall River, were other leaders of the fight against reconsideration.

ROPER BRANDS MITCHELL AS 'LOG JAMMER'

By Associated Press

Washington, June 21—Making a sweeping defense of the Commerce Department against charges of his ousted assistant, Ewing Y. Mitchell, Secretary Roper today in turn accused Mitchell of pursuing obstructive tactics which created a "log jam" of business in the department.

Roper appeared before the Senate commerce committee to answer the Mitchell accusations of inefficiency and graft.

Reading from a prepared statement, he described Mitchell as a man of "exceedingly suspicious temperament, prone to treat every rumor as true."

Committee members listened sympathetically — in contrast to their critical attitude toward Michell in his appearance on the stand.

Roper earnestly declared he had investigated all charges of "irregularities" and taken action where justified.

Asserting Mitchell had refused to act on business put before him to handle, he added:

"I deeply regret he did not appreciate the objective involved but was willing to wreck the public service through charges based chiefly on rumors and suspicions."

Roper denied that President Roosevelt had anything to do with retirement from service of the United States liner Leviathan, shipping board permission for which was said by Mitchell to have resulted in a government "gift" of $1,725,000 to the United States lines.

BLIND LEADERS Off for Convention

William H. McCarthy, state director of the blind, left today to attend a national convention for the blind in Louisville, Ky.

In his party were John J. Buckley, assistant to Director McCarthy, and Edward S. Foster, volunteer worker. They expect to return July 4.

Firemen Save Woman, 80

Imperiled by fire on the third floor of her home at 15 Peabody street, Roxbury, Mrs. Ellen Edwards, 80, was rescued over a ladder by firemen today.

The fire, starting in the basement, spread rapidly through the three floors and broke out on the roof.

KIDNAPED BOY'S MOTHER SUICIDE

Chicago, June 21—Mrs. Theresa Ranieri, 45, mother of Billy Ranieri, victim of a sensational kidnaping in 1928, died today from the effects of poison which she took at her home here.

She died while Billy, now 16, clung to her hand and begged her to get well.

Billy Ranieri was kidnaped by a Mafia gang and held several days before his father, a well-to-do contractor, paid ransom.

The abductors are now in prison.

Mrs. Mary Kilday, 45, owner of the house and daughter of Mrs. Edwards; her sons, Alvin, 22, and Francis, 19; Miss Mary Corcoran, 25, and her sister, Miss Catherine Corcoran, were also driven to the street.

Rozman Gives Up

William "Billy" Rozman, ex-bondsman and South End politician, sought on a $1520 larceny charge, surrendered today to Inspector Thomas Conaty.

Bakers to Meet

Bakers' Union No. 7 of Boston will hold a mass meeting at Wells Memorial hall, Washington and Dover streets, South End, tomorrow night to discuss the shortening of hours and forming standard wage scale for union bakers.

Truck Burns

Marblehead, June 21—A truck, containing 1000 gallons of tar oil, caught fire in Green street from a backfire today and was destroyed before the fire apparatus arrived.

ARSENIC USED TO 'CURE' TWO OF SARCOMA

By International News Service

Ithaca, N. Y., June 21—Two remarkable recoveries from sarcoma, a type of cancer, through use of arsenic, were reported today by Professor E. F. Burton of the chemistry department of the University of Toronto.

He spoke before the 12th colloid symposium of the American Chemical Society.

The experiments with arsenic were conducted in collaboration with Dr. A. C. Hendrick, also of Toronto University.

The cases cited by Professor Burton were those of two young women, aged 17 and 28, stricken with sarcoma.

In the case of the younger girl, a leg infection was diagnosed as osteogenic sarcoma with amputation recommended.

An identical diagnosis and recommendation had been given by the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., and by clinics in Montreal and Toronto.

The arsenic treatments were begun last October, Professor Burton said. A short time ago the patient returned to Winnipeg, apparently cured.

She gained 20 pounds during the treatments, and the diseased leg has returned to normal appearance.

The older woman's case had been diagnosed by three pathologists, separately, as sarcoma. She responded to none of the usual radium treatments, and her condition became aggravated.

After three to four morphine arsenic injections, relief was evidenced.

Now, after 16 months of treatments as prescribed by Burton and Hendrick, she has completely recovered.

Thirty per cent of cancer is of the sarcoma variety, Professor Burton pointed out. The condition is most prevalent among persons under 20, and generally leads to rapid death.

22-HOUR JURY FREES PAIR

Weary and unshaven after deliberating for 22 hours and 45 minutes, a Suffolk superior court jury today found Charles Cognato of Chelsea and Michael Pinnola of the South End not guilty of extortion.

The case was given to the jury shortly after 1 p. m. yesterday. Judge Thomas J. Hammond left the court without instructing the court officers to take the jury to a hotel for the night, and the 12 good men and true remained in unbroken session until noon today.

Cognato and Pinnola were charged with obtaining $10,000 from Antonio Magri, wealthy Harrison avenue merchant. Magri claimed he was taken to Cognato's Madison street home in Chelsea, where he witnessed an apparent murder of a man by two others.

Boston Boys In Pike Crash

Ipswich, June 21—Four Boston youths were severely injured today when their Maine-bound roadster crashed into the rear of a truck on the Newburyport turnpike near Rowley.

The injured, all taken to Hunt Memorial Hospital, Danvers, were: Lloyd A. Ryder, 20, Bainbridge street, Roxbury; Edward R. Allen, 25, Mountfort street, Back Bay; James Moore, 17, Carmel street, Roxbury; Clarence Dwelley, 21, 17 Carmel street.

The latter two suffered fractured arms and all were badly cut.

Wendell V. Forest, Hawthorne strct, Somerville, driver of the truck, was nearly killed by a third machine when he stepped frofn his cab after the crash.

SCIENCE TEXT About Creation

"Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday.

The Golden Text is:

"Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honor and power: for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created" (Revelation 4:11).

Among the citations which comprises the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible:

"In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God . . . All things were made by him; and without him was not any thing made that was made" (John 1:1,3).

SUSPECT HELD IN JURY CASE

Thomas Rowan of Newark street, Roxbury, was arrested today in connection with alleged jury tampering in the Coleman Foley burglary case in Suffolk Superior Court.

Rowan was taken into custody by Sergeant Maurice Sullivan, District Attorney William J. Foley immediately petitioned Judge John M. Gibbs to cite him in contempt of court. Rowan was held in $1000 bail.

A mistrial in the Foley case was declared yesterday after a juror, Walter F. Shea of Lamartine street, Jamaica Plain, reported he had been approached by a man who said he wanted to "talk over the case."

Another juror, from Revere, said he, too, was approached.

Three are five charges against Foley, whose alleged confederate, James F. Johnson, was shot to death by a policeman during an attempted store break in downtown Boston April 21, 1933.

FUR UNION RED Faces Labor's Bar

New York, June 21 (AP)—Defied on his anti-Red pronunciamento by the affiliated International Fur Workers' Union, which has joined with the Communist-controlled Fur Workers' Industrial Union, it was A. F. of L. President William Green's move today.

Green, through Vice-President Matthew Woll, had warned that unions admitting Communists would lose their charters.

Spanish Maine Discovers His New Sweetheart Strangled and Takes His Revenge

The Story So Far:

INTRIGUING, somewhat mysterious, beautiful Cosala Vanbrugh falls in love with Sir Harry Vane, prominent yoy English society man, on the voyage of the S.S. Amazon from SouthAmerica to England. Her brother, Otis, is fearful for the outcomid their marriage. At Bermuda, Manoel Maine, known as Spanish Mac, boards the ship, quite accidentally runs into Consuelo, recognizes h a something out of his shady past and threatens exposure unless a pays heavily. He confers with Otis, who has never heard of him anells him his amazing story, leading up to his connection with Cosela: Aristocratic Spaniard, forced to run away from home becawof a girl; forced to escape to the Foreign Legion after killing a Gem student at Heidelberg in a duel; escapes from the Foreign Leg by killing a soldier and a sergeant; in South America becomes thiever of a famous courtesan, La Bella Lola, by giving her a huge fakiamond, which a half-crazed Monk had sold him as an authentic dond. He gloatches at the joke played on LaBella Lola, until she ra away in Spain with £25,000 secured from the sale of the diand, whicl was genuine. He trails her to Monte Carlo, sneaks into hevom to get the diamond, is caught and offered the chance to enlist ile Legion again or go to jail. He enlists as a Spaniard (before hid been an Englishman) and continues his story:

WELL, in some ways I ired better in the Legion the second timor I knew the ropes and was a much tougher comer, a much harder and more seasoned characthan I had been when, as a boy, I fled from Heiberg.

In other ways I did not fare so well, for, this time, I had no money and no promise or hope of any.

Yes, I'm afraid that, by the time I had done three or four years of the second jolt I was pretty much bon legionnaire, which is apt to mean pretty much of a bad man.

Then came my second big fortune, gained and lost. And through a woman again, the sly little devil. Estella Margarita . . .

It was a place called Marakner, where she was a cabaret dancer. She was quite young and looked it, as she had worn remarkably well; for, probably, her perpetual pose of ingenue helped to keep her young-looking. I think we rather tend to grow into that which we profess to be, or pose as being.

She almost took me in, for a time, but I soon discovered that the sweet young thing had got a shadowy husband, or a soutenеur, who looked her up from time to time and collected whatever he thought was due to him.

I also found that she was carrying on with a comrade of mine, and fooling him to the top of his bent—another Anglo-Saxon. He was a Scot, a great, burly, powerful, red-headed, red-bearded Highlander, Mac-Something-or-Other.

Estella Margarita and I laughed about him a good deal. I was not jealous, of course; for the girl had to live, and it was damned little she got out of me, on a ha'penny a day.

However, I did give her a little necklace that cost me nothing—as I pinched it from another fille de joie who had annoyed me—and that necklace played its little part in . . . what came to pass.

ONE da; I got a note from her, telling me to come to her on Sunday evening at 5 sharp, and not to fail her on any account. She'd got something for me and we'd have a great time.

I went. She was lying on the bed, as usual. But what was unusual was that she'd been strangled with one of her own silk stockings. Her hands were bound together behind her back with the other one. Between her lips was a piece of paper on which was written:

"Welcome, beloved. You will stay with me—again—tonight."

"H'm!" thinks I. "Let sleeping cats lie. This is where I fade away. Monsieur le Mari complaisant or Monsieur le Soutenеur is not so complaisant as I thought . . . He has given the girl hers, for some reason—jealousy, or because she couldn't pay him enough—and he intends me to swing for it."

I turned about, closed the door behind me and departed.

Now, as I learned long afterward, the dirty dog who'd bumped her off had sent a similar note to poor old Mac-What's-His-Name, telling him to come at 6. I suppose the man had tricked or frightened or tortured her into writing the notes, because undoubtedly it was she who had written them.

Mac-What's-His-Name fell into the trap, too, and found her exactly as I had done. He took it rather hard, though. Went all to pieces.

HOW I came to know about it was through his getting drunk one night, months later, and hundreds of miles from Marakner, when we were out with a groupe mobile on very active service.

Maudlin and maundering, he started telling us the terrible tale of the one love of his life—a dancing girl strangled by a jealous husband in Marakner.

"Without thinking, I took him up

I gave Estella a little necklace that I pinched from another fille de joie.

And what do you think was one of the first things that caught my eye? The identical necklace that I had given to Estella Margarita. And just as I saw it Mac gave one of his inarticulate growls, like a wild beast. He was staring at the necklace, too. He'd seen it about Estella Margarita's neck—and, moreover, a little bangle, lying beside it, was one which he had given her!

Well, that settled Senor Mendoza's fate.

He said:

"You mean Estella Margarita? What? Were you her lover, too?"

"What? Were you her husband who murdered her?" he cried, and came for me with his bayonet like a raving maniac, a homicidal maniac. He was mad.

We had a hell of a fight and nearly killed each other.

Then months later, again back in Marakner, poor old Mac-What's-His-Name and I were walking out together, strolling along and thinking up plans for getting hold of a little of wine.

One of our ideas was to relieve Senor Mendoza, a wicked money lender, pawnbroker, jeweler fellow, of some of his superfluous stuff; and then we came to his shop we stopped and looked in the window.

We decided, then and there, that he must be the murderer, and we entertained no such foolish theories as the possibility of the bangle and necklace having been pawned with him by somebody else who was the murderer.

WE laid our plans and did the thing systematically and properly. The rascal had all sorts of bolts and bars and burglar alarms, so we got in through a skylight in the roof. We ransacked the shop and took the cream of the stuff—all that we could carry—and then attended to Senor Mendoza, who lived over the shop. He was in bed and asleep and snoring like a hippopotamus.

He woke up to find us, one each side of him, and obviously he recognized us. He must have seen us about with Estella Margarita, or coming and going to and from her room.

Anway, he squealed, gave himself away and proved how right we were.

And when we'd finished we went, taking with us, at a very conservative estimate, some $30,000 worth of really magnificent jewels, gold coin and high denomination paper money.

SO I deserted for the second time —but how differently. After the first few days, when the going was a bit rough, we travelled in comparative comfort, buying donkeys, horses, camels, as we wanted them; food, water, burnouses, disguises, anything we fancied.

The only drawback was that we had to go precisely where we should not be expected to go—for, naturally, there was a hue-and-cry about us, as the suspicious-minded police connected our disappearance with the robbery and murder of Mendoza.

And the worst o fit was that, by taking diverse and roundabout desert tracks or no tracks at all, we were dependent, for very life, upon oases and water holes.

Well, we discovered one in the wrong condition. Dry. And we had reached it on very thirsty camels and in an almost dying condition ourselves.

MAC, who was about twice my size or bulk, rather, insisted on taking care of the loot, which of course meant that he intended to take care of it for life. But though the excellent Mac had twice my brawn he had about half my brain.

Well, we laid ourselves down to sleep—and our camels laid themselves down to grumble—beside the well mouth. And, as soon as Mac was sleeping the sleep of the unjust, and snoring like a hog, I took over the responsibility of guarding the treasury. Having picked his pockets and taken his haversack—cleaned him out absolutely—I went down the rope into the well to dig with my hands and my bayonet for water in the wet sand at the bottom, 100 feet below. I had no intention of letting the excellent Mac wake up find me down the well and clear off with the loot.

But that is exactly what the idiot did do—or rather thought he was going to do.

And he did a thing I hadn't counted on. Instead of hauling up the rope and then calling down to me: "Good-bye, Spanish; I'm off wi' the siller!" he cut the rope with his bayonet and chucked it down onto me.

There was luck for you!

If Mack had pulled the rope up, as I had expected, I should simply have called out:

"All right. Good-bye, old chap, if you must go. But the loot's down here with me." And promptly he'd have dropped the rope back and pulled me up again.

But as it was, the fool had thrown the rope down—and the loot was no good to either of us.

In tomorrow's instalment, read how Spanish Maine again enters the lives of these two desert buccaneers, who alone know the secret of the hidden treasure — see what happens.

This Is Life
By ROBERT E. ROGERS

If reports be correct, William Allen White, Emporia publisher, frequent progressive, and constant Republican, is in Boston on a self-imposed assignment which is one of the most interesting that has been conceived in current history and biography.

To be precise, Mr. White is set upon finding out, if possible, the part that the late President Coolidge played in the Coolidge boom that eventually became the Hoover slump.

Robert E. Rogers

Did Mr. Coolidge hand over to Mr. Hoover a business and financial system that was a successful going concern or one that in March, 1929, was already doomed to collapse?

And in either case, how far was Coolidge responsible for what happened?

Mr. White has always been a vigorous and forthright newspaper man. He has always had the reputation for integrity. The chances are that if he comes to what he regards as well-founded conclusions, he will let the people in on the verdict truthfully, let the chips fall where they may.

He has a bias in favor of Coolidge, that is true, and he believes that once prosperity is established again another economical president like Coolidge will be very useful.

For the present he seems to believe that the Roosevelt policy of spending ourselves into prosperity is right.

How far Coolidge was economical is another question. Ike Hoover testifies, from the point of view of White House usher, that when Mr. Coolidge was spending his own money for the necessities of living he bought at Piggly-Wiggly stores and other economical places, but that when he was spending the government's money he was pretty lavish.

But on a larger scale, there are statisticians who deny flatly that Coolidge, in spite of all his talk, made any major retrenchments in government expenditures.

What of Attitude?

What William Allen White is interested in is Coolidge's attitude toward the economics of the great stock market boom.

Did he both directly and indirectly encourage it on the basis of his own economic training in the laissez-faire philosophy of the early 19th century?

Did he believe that whatever business did must be all right?

Did he believe that the stock market boom represented a real and wholesome increase in actual wealth?

Was he the unconscious dupe of Wall street or did he play along with his eyes open?

Did he know what it was all about or was it too big and staggering to be comprehended by his somewhat parochial mind?

Or did he try, secretly, to tone it down, and fail?

Even if he had the wish, could he have done anything to stop it?

These are fascinating questions and among the most important that can be asked by a modern historian or biographer.

We are awaiting anxiously the authorized biography of the late President, which is in process of being written by Claude M. Fuess, headmaster of Phillips Andover.

Of course, that work will cover his life. It cannot specialize upon this particular point, as Mr. White aims to specialize.

Nevertheless a thorough study of Coolidge's theory of political economy will go far to clear up this particular period.

My only fear is that Dr. Fuess, dealing with a notable so recently dead, whose memory is respected "next to idolatry" by so many living people, may be tempted to soft-pedal a little on controversial subjects.

Certainly he is not a debunker, and there are many who believe that he was unnecessarily gentle in his full and important memoir of Daniel Webster.

Tradition Holds

I suspect that the Webster of popular tradition, the drunkard, the politician in the breeches pockets of State Street, the lawyer always demanding that his retaining fees be sweetened, still survives in popular belief in spite of Dr. Fuess.

It will be ticklish work making a clear and impartial statement of Coolidge's part in the great debacle, even if the authorities are such men as Frank W. Stearns and Professor William Z. Ripley of Harvard.

There are plenty of people in the United States who will not hear a single criticism of Coolidge, the great representative plain man.

Because he was plain and representative, therefore he must have been omniscience incarnate. Thus they reason. So reason also the devotees of Hoover, mostly women.

My belief is that Mr. White will find that Mr. Coolidge had no knowledge of modern economic theory, that he still thought in terms of the industrial revolution, that he actually believed that stock market values were real wealth, that big business existed to help regulate the government instead of being regulated by it.

These were the real values in Mr. Coolidge's mind and only as a "front" to these was the inherited, habitual, traditional faith in village economy and thrift.

Whether Coolidge ever clearly recognized the unbridgable gulf between the realities of his thinking and his rationalization of them is the really profound problem.

It won't be solved by mortal man on this side of the last judgment, alas!

MOOSE FIGHT RED TREND

Communism as a rapidly growing menace will be one of the principal problems discussed when 30,000 delegates to the convention of the Loyal Order of Moose and their relatives convene here.

The meeting will open June 30 and continue through July 7.

Founded in 1906 to provide an education in religious and industrial subjects for fatherless children, the Loyal Order of Moose became alarmed at the Red tinge discernible in many American colleges and universities, and will lay plans to combat the trend.

Women Freed in Cuba Revolt

Havana, June 21 — Xiomara O'Halloran and Conchita Valdivieso, the two Cuban women tried with 31 men for alleged participation in a revolt in which a former cabinet officer and a government soldier were slain, have been acquitted, the military court announced here.

Five men received jail sentences for participation in the March riots. Senora O'Halloran still faces charges of forging her passport, and the Valdivieso woman faces prosecution on charges of being linked in the recent Bonet kidnaping.

RETTICH JURY VISITS SCENE UNDER GUARD

Under heavy guard the federal jury to hear evidence in the $123,000 mail truck robbery in Fall River last January, with five of the eight defendants, left in buses from the Federal building today to view the scene of the holdup.

More than 40 deputy marshals and state troopers were on guard. At Mattapan they were met by six state troopers armed with submachine guns.

Herbert Hornstein, one of the defendants, waived his right to accompany the jury. Mr and Mrs. Morris Rubin, two other defendants, did not go. They are held as accessories.

The defendants taken to the scene were Carl Rettich, Thomas Dugan, Charles Harrigan, John McGlone and Joseph Fisher.

Before starting for Fall River, Judge Hugh D. McLellan opened court. All the defendants were present with the exception of Hornstein.

Judge McLellan was told that the automobile in which he was riding with a deputy marshal had broken down on the road.

Attorney William R. Scharton, who took exception to Judge McLellan's ruling on the question of challenges of jurors several days ago, in behalf of Dugan, Harrigan and McGlone, today asked that exceptions be noted in behalf of the other defendants.

Take Alleged Rettich Gangsters to Scene of Robbery

Securely handcuffed to United States deputy marshals, alleged Rettich gangsters, on trial for a Fall River mail robbery, leave the Federal building here today to be present at the crime scene when the jury views it. The prisoners are concealing their faces with handkerchiefs. Jaunt after "G-men" had raided a so-called "crime farm" at Warwick, R. I., the defendants are being held under heavy guard. Today's trip of jury, prisoners and counsel to Fall River precedes taking of trial testimony. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

I'm no movie star, mon! But since the day I started tellin' ye about Bond's Ten Payment Plan my fan mail would make a lot o' screen actors jump wi' joy. Just read some o' these letters!

Sirs:
Permit me to thank you for the courtesy I was accorded when I recently opened a charge account under your Ten Payment Plan. Your idea of combining the better features of a charge service, with the present day needs for extended payments, is a long step forward. I shall certainly recommend it to my associates.
Yours very truly,
(A SCHOOL PRINCIPAL)

Dear Sandy:
You're a life-saver! I don't know how my husband could have bought that much needed suit without your Ten Payment Plan. Food and everything's cost so much these days, that he just couldn't pay for new clothes all at one clip. But splitting the payments over two weeks makes it easy. Thanks for your grand service!
Sincerely,
(A HOUSEWIFE)

To the Scotchman of Bond Clothes:
I owe you an apology! I always thought it was the bunk, when you said "Bond's Ten Payment Plan costs nothing extra." So I checked up! And when I saw that your cash prices have not been changed, and that you add on no interest charges, was my face red! I'll be seeing you next week.
Yours,
(A TRAVELING AUDITOR)

Dear Scotty:
Just got your "thank you" letter. Sometimes your Scotch lingo puzzles me - but there's nothing hard to understand about your Ten Payment Plan. Lots of the fellows here in the bank, use it. Paying only $5 at purchase is a clinch. And so is splitting the rest over ten weeks. Thanks for making it so easy to wear good clothes.
Yours very truly,

Gentlemen:
Seldom do I write a letter like this, but Rochester-tailored clothes are my weakness, and when I saw yours at only $30 with two trousers, I figured you should have a pat on the back. I have always had so much more, that your low price lection at such a modest is really a revelation. It's by far the most convenient way to buy.

MRS. WELCH SLAIN?

Dr. Boos Reports Traces of Arsenic in Body of Many Times Wedded Woman

Murder was added today to theories concerning the death of Dr. Helen G. F. Welch, formerly of East Boston.

Strong traces of arsenic poison were reported in a preliminary examination by Dr. William F. Boos, Harvard toxicologist.

He declared further investigation probably would show she died as a result of the arsenic found in her body.

The death certificate made out when she died three years ago in Titusville, Fla., gave pneumonia as the cause.

To complicate the case, Dr. Charles Branch, who also examined the remains, stated that she died of cancer. He admitted however, that there were traces of arsenic.

SEEKS INQUEST DELAY

In view of the report of Dr. Boos, Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien, representing three of the contestants, wired Florida officials and asked that the inquest be postponed until Dr. Boos had opportunity to examine further specimens.

The current investigation began when relatives, who were cut off in a codicil to her will executed a few days before her death, rescinded a previous clause making them beneficiaries in her $200,000 estate.

The final disposition made Dr. Charles D. Gibson Mack, of North Weymouth, her brother; Olaf Olsen, vice-president of the Old Colony Trust company, and Mrs. James E. McNary, also of North Weymouth, the principal beneficiaries.

HAD WEDDED NINE

Those contesting the will are Mrs. Lillian Mack Buxton, of Springfield; James Waugh, of Wellesley Hills, and Albert Stewart of Newark, N. J.

Dr. Welch survived nine husbands.

Her last venture into matrimony was with 80-year-old Commodore Charles A. Welch, a neighbor of husband No. 8, in Titusville. It was Commodore Welch who left her $300,000.

The battle over the will is being waged in Florida. But Massachusetts came into the picture when the relatives asked that her body be exhumed.

Dr. Welch was buried in Woodlawn cemetery.

District Attorney Warren L. Bishop said today that his office had no official interest in the alleged poisoning of Dr. Welch as the crime, if any, was not committed in Middlesex County.

Any information he received would be turned over to Florida authorities, he said.

MOTHER WINS DAUGHTER

Custody of Bernice Grohe, 14, was taken from her father, William E. Grohe of Waltham, today and given to her mother, Mrs Gladys Angelery of Bloomfield, N. J., by decree in Middlesex probate court.

Mrs. Angelery told the court that since Grohe divorced her in 1930 both had remarried again. She said her daughter was unhappy with the second Mrs. Grohe.

Grohe appeared against the petition, saying the girl had had a happy home with him.

DOCTOR SUICIDE During Dope Probe

Minnespolis, Minn., June 21 (INS)—As a routine check-up, Federal Narcotic Agent H. E. Anderson walked into the office of Dr. Richard Siter, 37, and introduced himself.

He wanted, he said, to check up prescriptions bearing Dr. Sitar's signature.

Dr. Sitar reached into his pocket, produced a small phial, from which he drank, and dropped dead.

WANDERS WITH DEATH

Frantic Search for Man Who Doesn't Know Dog That Bit Him Had Rabies

By International News Service

New York, June 21—Somewhere in the city today moved a man, a boiling virus of madness in his veins, doomed to a horrible death unless he is located by nightfall.

He is Gerald Jordan, address unknown. The dread virus of rabies, inflicted by a stricken terrier two days ago, possesses him.

Jordan appeared at an animal hospital two days ago with the terrier, which he said had bitten him in the leg and arm. He gave a Fourteenth street address and left.

Yesterday the dog died. Examination inclosed it had rabies.

Police raced to the address Jordan gave. He could not be located there. Health authorities immediately ordered a radio alarm broadcast for him.

Today he had not been heard from.

Unless he is located soon, health officials say, he is doomed to die in agonized madness.

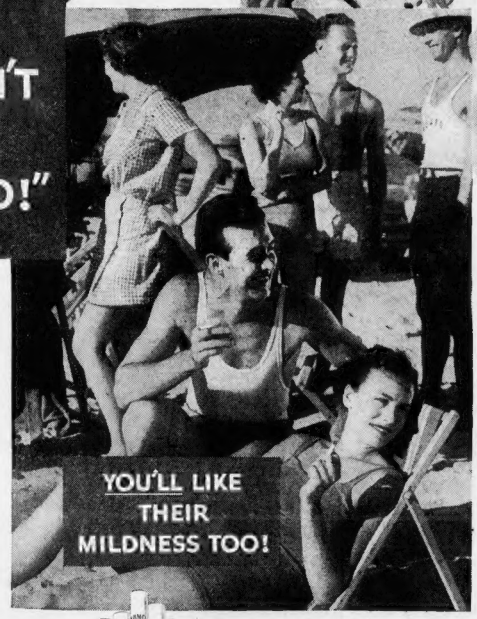
ATHLETES SAY:

"THEY DON'T GET YOUR WIND!"

A FAMOUS GOLFER enjoys a Camel! Tommy Armour, a Camel smoker of many years' standing, who says: "Mildness means a lot to a man who must always be 'in condition.' I've smoked Camels for years, without jittery nerves or cutting down my wind. I'd walk a mile for a Camel... any day!"



Read below what these famous athletes say about their experiences in smoking Camels

A suggestion: Follow the athletes in your search for cigarette mildness. They can't trifle with healthy nerves—their "condition"—their wind. The cigarette they smoke must be mild.

Tommy Armour, the golf champion, says: "Camels never bother my nerves or shorten my wind—convincing evidence that Camels are mild."

Mel Ott, heavy-hitting outfielder of the New York Giants, reports: "My experience is that Camels are so mild they never get my wind."

Stubby Kruger, water polo and swimming star: "Camels are mild and gentle. They don't interfere with my wind." And Amy Lou Oliver, diver, and Lester Stoefen, tennis star, agree with Pete Knight, the rodeo champion, who says: "Camels—there's a smoke so mild it never spoils your timing, never cuts down your wind, never gets you out of condition."

A mildness that will please you too!

Camels are made from costlier tobaccos. They are mild, cool, gentle on the throat. Smoke them all you wish. Camels don't upset your nerves . . . or tire your taste. And athletes find that Camels do not get their wind.

CONSIDER THAT LIFE IS MORE worth while when you feel good—physically fit, "in condition." Think of your nerves . . . your wind . . . and turn to Camels. They are made from costlier tobaccos. Athletes say, "They don't get your wind."

SO MILD YOU CAN SMOKE ALL YOU WANT!

Camels

CAPTAIN EDEN OUT TO QUIET MUSSOLINI

By Associated Press

Rome, June 21—The Italo-Ethiopian dispute rated second today the question of the future of the League of Nations with the burden of an answer apparently falling on Britain's Captain Anthony Eden.

Well-informed sources said that whether Italy carries out her virtual threat to quit the League may depend on Captain Eden's forthcoming visit to Rome and his conversations with Premier Benito Mussolini.

High quarters expressed a belief that Italy would follow Japan, Germany and Paraguay out of the League if the Council attempted to intervene in the Italo-Ethiopian dispute on the basis of an Ethiopian note presented Monday to Geneva.

Soon afterward it was announced that Eden would come to Rome early next week after his Paris visit.

Captain Eden's journey to Rome requires a new round of discussions of naval and air ratios with Mussolini but authoritative sources said they would also center on the East African border controversy.

Their discussions were expected to center on the petition of Ethiopian note to the League invoking Article X of the covenant, pledging members to respect the territorial integrity of other members, and Article XV, providing for settlement of disputes by arbitration.

Captain Eden was expected to exert his efforts to try to keep Italy within the League fold.

BRITAIN SEEKS NAVAL PEACE

Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press

Paris, June 21—Captain Anthony Eden, British minister for League of Nations affairs, tried to pacify Premier Pierre Laval of France in a two-hour talk today in an effort to create a peace system for Europe.

French protests that the British had scrapped the Washington and Versailles treaties and had broken the common allied front by according Germany a big fleet were met by Captain Eden's explanation that the Anglo-German naval accord is a tangible start toward a universal agreement on armaments.

Premier Laval and France's Piétri, minister of marine after appearing before the Chamber of Deputies' naval committee this afternoon, were to get down to brass tacks with Captain Eden on a four-point program to be discussed during his two-day visit.

The program is 1 a pact of Eastern European security system, 2 a Danubian accord, 4, the Ethiopian problem.

Wife Needs Petting, Says Court

By Universal Service

New York, June 21—A wife needs petting, caressing and care, Supreme Court Justice Carew ruled Friday in granting Mitosh Kosch, Jr., a separation from the pearl-necklaced wife of Belleview hotel, where she has been living.

The doctor had her committed to the hospital and told the court:

"She's the sweetest woman in the world, but acts abnormally sometimes."

This brought the advice of the jurist who said:

"A wife is a peculiar institution which few men know how to handle. Women demand to be petted and cajoled. The more you see of a wife, the more you want to take care of her, and when they get a spark of jealousy, oh well, very few men know what to do."

The justice indicated he would grant the husband's petition when he said her counsel was preparing papers for a separation from the doctor and she was returning to live with her parents.

Society Flocks to Thames For Harvard-Yale Classic

By BETTY ALDEN

NOW THAT THE RACES at The Country Club are over society has focused its attention upon another sport, rowing . . . and the banks of the Thames river in New London will be crowded this evening with social celebrities from all over the country, their eyes fixed upon the course of the Harvard and Yale crews, fighting their annual battle on the day after Commencement . . .

ANN TORBERT

Many a beautiful yacht basing from Boston and all up along the New England coast will ride the calm waters of the Thames to afford their owners and guests a good view of the finish line . . . Even the President of the United States is forsaking the nation's business for a few hours to watch his son, Franklin, Jr., rowing as number 4 man in the Harvard junior varsity crew . . .

After the races some of the yacht owners who have organized themselves into a group which they call the "Cruising Club," are going off for a short cruising party along the Atlantic coast . . . Among the sailors and their wives will be the Dudley Wolfes, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Paine, and probably Richard Lyman who is an ardent sailor and hardly ever misses a get together of his fellow sailors . . .

Katie Chappell, one of last winter's debs, has driven down to New Haven with George Laurist for the races and Ruth Edmands has taken a party of young people to watch the races from her parents' yacht . . .

• • •

A TOTAL OF 1896 degrees were awarded at Harvard yesterday and most of the graduates thought that the event of their graduation after four years of hard work was enough of an occasion for one day . . . But to W. Gardner Barker, 2nd, attending Commencement and receiving his sheepskin was merely a way of passing the morning and occupying his mind so that he would not arrive all unnerved and trembling at his wedding in the afternoon . . .

If, notwithstanding his busy day, he felt the uncertainties which beset all prospective husbands, he was certainly put at his ease by the loving smile he received from Milda Allen, his bride, as she took his arm after her long march down the aisle . . .

As the wedding party stood grouped around the chancel of Trinity Church they presented a lovely picture, the deep red of the peonies in the bridesmaids' bouquets blending perfectly with the deep red carpet on the chancel and their white frocks and hats repeating the color note of the white flowers which were arranged in huge clusters at either side of the altar . . .

Milda's veil, fastened to an extremely becoming circlet of pearls in a half halo effect, floated over her simple satin gown and long train . . .

Evelyn Weatherby in Smart Printed Frock

AMONG THE WEDDING GUESTS were Evelyn Weatherby and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Allan Weatherby . . . Evelyn was wrapped in a mustard color coat which revealed a bit of her smart printed afternoon frock, and Mrs. Weatherby's blue and white polka dot dress was matched to a darling visor hat with a little white pompon for decoration . . .

Eleanor Claflin in a navy blue suit with a pointed fox scarf almost missed the wedding but was in time to see Milda and Gardner at close range in the doorway of the church after the ceremony . . .

Lucy Rantoul and Dick Thorndike watched the proceedings with more than a casual interest . . . there are rumors of a fall wedding for this popular couple and Connie Turner, who was one of Milda's bridesmaids, will be Lucy's maid of honor . . .

Martha Seabury in a rosy red tweed outfit attended with her mother and Anne Torbert and Frannie Seaver were noted in the throng at Trinity . . . Dodo Dean's hat was a trick little turban of French blue with a bunch of French flowers right over one eye . . . Jean Adams, Ernestine Hills and Mrs. George Hills, Patty Spencer, sub-deb sister of the maid of honor, Marjorie Osgood and Mrs. E. Phillips Osgood were others among the guests . . .

Smith-Prouty Ceremony

SOME OF THE GUESTS hurried from Trinity right out to Brookline for Jane Prouty's wedding . . . There, in the First Parish Church, in front of a bower of magnificent cedar trees and white flowers, Jane became the wife of William Mason Smith, Jr., of New York . . .

The guests at this wedding thought they were at Harvard Class Day when they arrived at the Prouty home for the reception . . . the lawns were bright with vividly colored umbrellas shading small tables and everywhere was a profusion of color with summer flowers and the exquisite gowns of the bridal party . . .

Among the guests who congratulated the newlyweds and bid them bon voyage when they departed for their European honeymoon, were Ruth Swift, Betty Soule, Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. William Coffin, Mrs. J. Mott Hallowell, Mrs. Howard Turner Mrs. Henry H. Richardson, Mrs. George Francis and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wellington with their daughter Nancy . . .

Martha's New Strawberry Recipes

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

"If God ever made a berry better than the strawberry," said Sir Jonahan Swift, the author of Gulliver's Travels, "it would be another strawberry. That was two centuries ago and many millions are still of the same opinion.

The native season for strawberries is at its very short best at the present time. It is at its height, with most of the berries coming from the Cape.

Strawberries should be firm and ripe when bought and should be kept in the refrigerator until ready to use. Never wash strawberries before hulling. Many people like to hull strawberries and then dip them in powdered sugar as a sauce for ice cream. And to add to your list we suggest this novel way of serving strawberries — especially attractive for supper.

Nothing could be easier to serve than these chilled individual dumplings for supper . . . one for each guest, and hot biscuits with one another for new ideas. The strawberry dumplings would be served to the guests as made by adding a small amount of sugar and lemon juice to cool whipped cream. Top with tiny macaroons. (You might try croutons which have been tossed together with melted butter, to which a dash of almond has been added.)

JELLY MAKING WEEK

Although all the year is the season for the pleasant pursuit of making jelly and jam for future use, to urge this old-fashioned art, which is by no means a lost one, on the younger generation, the Girl Scouts and the Campfire Girls have dedicated this week as National Jelly Making Week. Thousands of bushels of the fresh fruit are being transformed into thousands of glasses of jelly and jam. The work being done in preparing this art goes toward cooking badges and homemaking honors. The products themselves, sometimes being sold for charitable purposes, are sent to hospitals for the patients.

The methods used for jelly making at the present time are the new shorter methods in which the use of the commercial pectin is recommended. The most important point is to recognize the "full rolling boil." For the successful making of jellies depends upon this process. The full rolling boil is reached when the mixture tumbles and rises and cooks so hard that it practically tries to climb out of the kettle. It cannot be stirred down. When this point is reached begin to count on the clock the exact number of seconds the recipe calls for.

We recommend a recipe for making strawberry jelly and jam from the same mixture as being economical and satisfactory. First the fruit is dripped for the jelly and the remaining pulp is used for the jam.

COMBINATION STRAWBERRY JELLY AND JAM

To prepare fruit, place 5 quarts uncrushed strawberries in kettle. Mix ½ cup sugar with fruit. This sugar is in addition to that specified below. Cover kettle and heat gently until juice starts to flow, then bring just to the simmering point. Separate juice from pulp by placing hot fruit in colander or sieve. For Jelly: Turn enough juice through a double layer of cheesecloth held in a [illegible] to give 4 cups of strawberry juice. Squeeze and strain juice from 1 medium lemon. For Jam: Use strawberries from which the juice has drained. Use the excess juice to fill up last cup.

SPARKLING STRAWBERRY JELLY

4 cups (3 pounds) berry juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
5 cups (2½ pounds) sugar
1 bottle fruit pectin

Measure sugar and juice into large saucepan and mix well. Bring to a boil over hottest fire and at once add bottled fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard ½ minute. Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin at once. Makes about 12 glasses (6 fluid ounces each).

WHOLE STRAWBERRY JAM

6 cups (3 pounds) strawberries
7 cups (3 pounds) sugar
½ bottle fruit pectin

Measure sugar and strawberries into large kettle, mix well and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 3 minutes. Remove from fire and stir in bottled fruit pectin. Pour quickly. Paraffin at once. Makes about 10 glasses (6 fluid ounces each).

RED RASPBERRY JELLY

4 cups (2 pounds) juice
7½ cups (3½ pounds) sugar
1 bottle fruit pectin

To prepare juice, crush thoroughly or grind about 3 quarts fully ripe berries. Place in jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out juice. Measure sugar and juice into large saucepan and mix. Bring to a boil over hottest fire and at once add bottle fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard ½ minute. Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin at once. Makes about 11 glasses (6 fluid ounces each).

RED RASPBERRY JAM

4 cups (2 pounds) prepared fruit.
5 ½ cups (3¾ pounds sugar.
½ bottle fruit pectin.

To prepare fruit, crush or grind about two quarts fully ripe berries. Measure sugar and prepared fruit into large kettle, mix well, and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard one minute. Remove from fire and stir in bottled fruit pectin. Then stir and skim by turns for just 5 minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Pour quickly. Paraffin at once. Makes about 10 glasses (6 fluid ounces each).

SOUR CHERRY JELLY

3½ cups (1¾ pounds) juice
7 cups (3 pounds) sugar
1 bottle fruit pectin

To prepare juice, stem and crush about 3 pounds fully ripe cherries. Do not pit. Add ½ cup water bring to a boil, cover and simmer 10 minutes. Place fruit in jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out juice. (For stronger cherry flavor, add ¼ teaspoon almond extract before pouring hot jelly.) Measure sugar and juice into large saucepan and mix. Bring to a boil over hottest fire and at once add bottled fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard ½ minute. Remove from fire, skim and pour quickly. Paraffin hot jelly at once. Makes about 10 glasses (6 fluid ounces each).

DR. PAUL RICHARD HINCHEY, son of Mrs. Richard Hinchey and the late Dr. Hinchey of Waltham, will be married tomorrow morning to Miss Bessie Marie Hickey, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Joseph Hickey of Peabody in St. John's Church at ten o'clock.

Miss Hickey is the niece of Rev George O'Connor of Dedham, formerly associated with the Catholic Charitable Bureau in Boston. She is a graduate of Roxbury Academy of Notre Dame and the Boston University Sargeant School of Physical Education.

Dr. Hinchey was given a bachelor dinner last evening at the University Club by a large circle of friends

Ganos Will Go Abroad

MR. AND MRS. SETH GANO of Belmont, with their daughters, Priscilla and Cynthia,are sailing tomorrow on the Laconia, to spend the summer in Scotland and England.

Their daughter, Barbara, who has been a student of International Law in London all winter, will join them in England.

Mr. Gano is planning to fly to Constantinople the last of July to investigate the progress of the work of the Byzantine Institute in restoring the Mosaics at Sancta Sophia. Mr. Gano is the treasurer of the institute

Miss Priscilla Gano was one of the first debutantes to be presented last season, having been entertained at a large outdoor luncheon in June and later in the fall at a tea at the Oakley Country Club.

Gypsy Party

Students of the Boston University Sargent School of Physical Education held a gypsy party at Half Moon Lake, summer camp site of the school, last evening.

Dressed in gypsy costume, an outdoor supper was served on the hilltop after which the old Romany custom of reading poetry, burying it and marking the spot with an altar of stones, so that next year's group could find it and add to it, was observed

The members then returned to camp for an evening of music, gypsy dancing and singing.

Bess Meredyth in New 'Earthbound' Film

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

(Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service)

Los Angeles, June 21—You will find settled down at Columbia one Lionel Houser, the newspaper lad whose stories on the Morro Castle disaster and the Hauptmann arrest were responsible for his being brought to Hollywood. Houser, in collaboration with Ethel Hill, has just finished "Lady, Beware," a sparkling comedy.

Because it's entirely original it has been put into production immediately with Jean Arthur and George Murphy in the leading roles and Eric Kenton directing. These newspaper lads are doing all right in the movies. Every studio has one or more ex-reporters on its writing staff.

The publicity department where reams of fascinating publicity was written when it was made as a silent picture, is being revamped by Bess Meredyth for 20th Century. Bess is out of the hospital and feeling better again. Sonia Curtiz, family is doing all right. Michael Curtiz, Bess' husband, has just signed his eighth contract with Warner Brothers and his very best work has been done during the past year with such pictures as Paul Muni's "Black Fury." He is preparing to do "Captain Blood" in which George Brent will have the lead.

Here's one accident that happened the night of Carole Lombard's party that had nothing to do with slides, social mixers and trick, dare-devil stunts. Cesar Romero bumped his knee after he left Carole's party and an infection set in. Too bad for Cesar because very nice for Antonio Moreno. He will make the English and Spanish versions of "Storm Over the Andes" which Romero was to have had.

Chatter in Hollywood: Katharine Cornell's most famous namesake is the infant daughter of Norma and Irving Thalberg. Everyone, of course, expected that the young lady would have her mother's name. But Norma said no Norma has a tremendous admiration for Miss Cornell so she decided to name her daughter after the celebrated stage actress —so Katharine Thalberg it will be.

I'd like to do a little prophesying about Margaret Callahan, a newcomer from the stage who has just finished "Leander Clicks" for RKO. She has a personality and a voice, two important assets in the movies, and RKO is recognizing that fact by giving her bigger and better roles. She will have the lead in "Old Man Murphy," a story in which James Barton is the star. Another interesting member of the cast is Maureen Delaney, one of the famous Abbey players. Charles Vidor has been assigned to direct while Cliff Reid is the producer.

Samuel Goldwyn is feeling very happy over the success of "Becky Sharp," not because it's his picture or because he had a thing in the world to do with it but Miriam Hopkins, whose stock has gone sky high since she appeared in this all-color drama, is under contract to him. Sam sees a great future for Miriam and so eager is he to put her on the screen that work has been started since Monday on "Barbary Coast." That makes two Godwyn pictures now in production—"Dark Angel" and "Barbary Coast."

Snapshots of Hollywood

LUPE VELEZ, Hollywood's firebrand, is leaving her Tarzan again to do a series of personal appearances; GINGER ROGERS and LEW AYRES to take a belated honeymoon in Europe; they leave within ten days; MARLENE DIETRICH supervising the making of crepe suzettes; and according to COUNT CARPEGNA, MARY ASTOR and a few more people, they were somathing grand.

MR. and MRS. LOU ANGER receiving congratulations on their silver wedding anniversary, neither of them look old enough to have been married as many years, JACK DEMPSEY expected in Hollywood some time next month; he may bring HANNAH and the baby with him. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Warner Baxter on Twin Bills

Racing Thrills in Film

By GEORGE HOLLAND

Trouble drops out of the blue for Warner Baxter in "Under the Pampas Moon," one of this week's screen attractions at the Paramount and Fenway Theaters.

It is trouble in the shape of Ketti Gallian, Baxter is a gaucho, or Argentine cow-puncher, it seems, and with his trusty band behind him he is galloping back to the rancho from town, where he has placed a few bets at the track on his own horse.

George Holland

The plane above them in the blue Argentine sky suddenly drops to earth in a forced landing and pretty Miss Gallian steps forth.

But with her steps John Mijan, and from then on the astute movie-goer knows that there is dirty work afoot. For Mr. Mijan casts a covetous eye over Chico Lando, the Baxter horse, and hires a Baxter rival to steal him.

Off to Buenos Aires in pursuit of his stolen nag goes the gaucho—and, with commendable taste, in pursuit of Ketti Gallian.

Recognizing his horse and winning a lot of money on him at the races, the gaucho is content for a time to confine himself to the wooing of Miss Gallian. But the money doesn't last, and Miss Gallian comes under suspicion of having been implicated in the theft.

Things wind up happily, when, after a thrilling race, the gaucho and his merry men kidnap the horse and Miss Gallian to boot.

There is a good deal of nonsense about the code of the gaucho, and lips that are burning to kiss, while hands are yearning to keel; but it is fair entertainment. Baxter and Miss Gallian haven't much to go on, but they are always capable. And Velez and Yolanda dance beautifully.

A diverting college mystery-comedy, "College Scandal," is the co-feature at the two theaters this week.

A young, lively and good-looking cast includes Arlina Judge, Kent Taylor, Wendy Barrie and Benny Baker—who used to annoy Lou Holtz as "Snowsky." The campus editor is murdered under mysterious circumstances. The murder of the college song writer follows hard upon the first crime. There is an effective tenseness in the film's action, with rather a good surprise ending.

The campus atmosphere that Elliott Nugent has given his production is not too authentic, but there is one good song in the Middle of a Kiss," and some pleasant comedy from Benny Baker, William Frawley and William Benedict.

New Bill at Bowdoin

A new double feature program comes to the Bowdoin Square Theater tomorrow. Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables" with Charles Laughton, Fredric March and Rochelle Hudson, is paired with Gene Stratton-Porter's "Laddie." The latter has John Beal and Gloria Stuart as its featured players.

Braddock Tells of Win in Hearst Film

After-the-fight pictures of the new "Cinderella" heavyweight boxing champion, James J. Braddock, are highlights of the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News, at Loew's Orpheum.

The irrepressible Maxie is likewise shown; and his explanation of his black eye is characteristically amusing.

Damage wrought by the recent earthquake in India, which cost the lives of a thousand souls, is graphically shown. Two hundred Europeans, including 43 British airmen, were among the victims. Included in the tragic shots are scenes of a rajah's wrecked palace, a razed prison and a hospital where 300 patients helplessly met death.

Jack Lovelock, running ace from New Zealand, beats our finest middle-distance stars, Cunningham and Bonthron, at Princeton's invitation track meet. No records were broken, but it is a thrilling race, with both Lovelock and Bonthron putting on the steam to leave Glenn Cunningham in third place.

King Victor Emmanuel of Italy reviews four divisions of Italian troops before they set out for the African border and the squabble in Abyssinia. Exclusive shots from Addis Ababa show counter preparations on the part of Emperor Haile Selassie's military forces.

CAPE COD SPAN OPENING FACES TRAFFIC TEST

Bourne, June 21—The modern history of automobile traffic control will be written at the dedication of the Cape Cod Canal bridges at Bourne and Sagamore tomorrow.

Greatest of state police details since the gasoline buggy replaced the horse and carriage—115 officers—reinforced by 50 town police and 100 special deputies will handle an estimated stream of 100,000 cars.

All of them will be controlled by a portable radio broadcasting station set up here under the direction of Lieutenant Martin Joyce, head of the state police communications system.

Ten cruising cars, a score of radio-equipped motorcycles will pick up orders from this central bureau and relay them to the officers in the field.

Authorities, who see in the new span over the canal an end to Sunday traffic jams by Cape-going motorists are on their mettle to make the inaugural an acid test.

Estimates of visitors here for the dedication exercises at 3 p. m. tomorrow run as high as 250,000. More than a million hot dogs will be a-sizzling for the hungry. Tons of ice cream will be waiting for dispensing. Shore dinners by the thousands will be ready.

The gigantic parade over the new bridges, to be led by Governor Curley, will include 300 National Guard and regular United States army men, American Legion and other veteran delegations from 50 Cape cities and towns as well as floats and bodies of school fraterna. and civic organizations.

Regeneration Of the Mischief Twins

IF YOU WATCH the dignified struttings of Manager Charley Grimm and the gimpy-legged efforts of Rabbit Maranville during the current Cubs-Braves series, you would never suspect that, ten years ago, the two pooled their talents for trouble and, as picturesque Pittsburgh inebriates, set a league record for mischief.

Austen Lake

Time and circumstance did for Charley and Rabbit what Bill McKechnie, as the old Pirate schoolmaster, failed to do. Time gentled their restless spirits. Circumstance cooled their fevers.

But in 1925, when the two were teaming in a goofy campaign of kidnaping taxies, frightening bartenders, pleasure brawling in public and drinking the good fight of prohibition, McKechnie found his hair much grayer for the worry such people had given him.

So Bill sold them, as a matched pair, to the Cubs' reform school system, saying they were incurables who loved the synthetic delights to be found in boisterous bottles, and the only way to keep them good was to lock them in their cells at night. Bill added that he did not like the odor of a drunkard and would not keep one in stock.

* * *

Pilgrims' Progress

IN THE TEN-YEAR INTERVAL Rabbit jig-danced his way out of the Cubs management on the roof of a Times square taxi, sank to minor league levels and finally took moral stock and plain water for his drink.

And Charley also became Christianized, forsaking rum and the devil's works, and emerging like a character from the Old Testament.

His come-upance was complete, and when the Cubs' owners called Charley to judgment, he was repentant, docile and efficiently able to take over the management.

Managerial opportunity came too early and regeneration too late to give Rabbit his biggest chance. But, when his call came, Charley's reform was finished, and he had learned to bend his neck.

So now, while Rabbit is squeezing out his last usefulness with the Braves as a supernumerated rooster who keeps going on sheer nerve and a fighting heart, Charley is bedded down in satin as the Cubs' manager and vice-president at a salary of $35,000 a year and with a strong box full of Wrigley bonds.

Primo's Thwarted Appetite

ALWAYS, SINCE HIS HUMBLE beginnings as a street sweep and carnival freak, Primo Carnera has been cursed with a disappointed stomach. He has never had all the food he can eat.

On the afternoon that Leon Ses discovered him performing feats of strength with a gypsy sideshow in southern France, Carnera had agreed:

"Yes, I will be a boxer, if you will promise to feed me all I can eat."

In his early days of vagabonding, Primo could not afford to fill his vast emptiness. And now that he has the funds, his trainers refuse to let him. He complains in his Auburn, N. Y., training camp:

"What they feed me would not keep a midget alive. I am only waiting till I get that title back. Then I will retire and eat all I want. Now when I ask, 'Please, Mr. Soresi, can I have some food,' he hands me a glass of orange juice. I am orange juiced to death."

Soresi mounts guard over the Italian's appetite for good reason. Last year, week after his match with Max Baer, Primo slipped out and ate a huge mass of spaghetti, a peck of meat patties fried in olive oil and came back to camp spanking his sides.

A week later his sides were spanked again by Max Baer's roundhouse wallops.

Old Folks' Share

ANOTHER BOGEY has risen to frighten Massachusetts horse and dog track promoters. In Bill 2144, pertaining to old age pensions, section 6 provides that the state may levy an additional 10 per cent, above the 10 and 15 per cent chews now permitted the horse and dog people.

This, if exercised according to law, would allow the parimutuel mills to soak up 20 and 25 per cent, respectively, from the gross betting money which passes through the hoppers. Of this the state would skim off 13½ per cent.

What would certainly happen if this takes place is that public betting would be shooed into the hands of the bookmakers, who are still doing a thriving business without sharing any of their receipts with the Commonwealth.

Mother Schaaf's Relief

AMONG THE BALES of wired congratulations, which poured into Jimmy Braddock's home after taking Max Baer's heavyweight title, was one from Mrs. Clara Schaaf, mother of Ernie Schaaf of Boston, who died of a brain hemorrhage six months after his bout with Baer.

"As a mother who lost her son in one tragedy," she telegraphed, "I was afraid for you. I am relieved and glad."

In replying through his wife, Braddock said he would lay a wreath on Schaaf's resting place as a token of sympathy, when he next comes to Boston.

Marberry's Choice

IT DEVELOPS that when Fred Marberry received his unconditional release from the Detroit Tigers, Joe Cronin of the Red Sox wired him a contract offer, closely followed by one from the Braves.

But Marberry chose instead the bine serge of umpiring and convinced President Will Harridge that he had memorised the rules. His starting salary is only $3500, as against larger sums offered by the Boston clubs.

Marberry reasoned that he was on the edge of his physical precipice, and that, while he might prolong his athletic life a year or so, umpiring offered a livelihood for his middle age.

Pro Footballers Freeze Schedule

RECENTLY THE NATIONAL Professional Football League heads gathered from the four corners of the country to sit down over the fall schedule in New York. Everybody wanted the choice home dates. Nobody would yield. They went home without a schedule . . . Following a "fellowship plan," W. K. Wrigley, president of the Cubs, is inviting each of his Cubs' players to dine with him one at a time. In his disillusioned days, Judge Fuchs followed the same scheme with his Braves.

President Sees H-Y Regatta

Blue in Late Spurt to Win Frosh; Harvard Short in Jayvees

By PAT ROBINSON
By International News Service Staff Correspondent

New London, Conn., June 21 (INS)—Yale's freshman and junior varsity crews swept to victory over Harvard today.

Both races were remarkably close. The Yale freshmen, after trailing for almost two miles, came on to win by three feet.

Yale's junior varsity stood off a gallant challenge of the Harvard boat to win by six feet in nine minutes and 56 seconds. The freshman time was not announced.

President Roosevelt followed both races from the deck of the referee's boat. He saw his son tend namesake, Franklin Jr., pull a great No. 4 oar in the Harvary Jayvee boat.

In this race Yale swept into an early lead and increased it under a slow beat to almost a length at the mile. Here the Harvard crew, stroked by Bob Cutler of Charles River, Mass., began to put on the pressure and the crimson-tipped oars began to cut down the gap of open water between them and the Yale shell.

Half a mile from home the Harvard boat shot alongside the Yale shell, going strong. A hndred yards from the finish No. 5 in the Yale boat caught a grab but quickly rea and just lasted to win by six feet

In the freshman race, Yale's youngsters, stroked by Dick Davies, of New Yor, came on with a dying rush in the last 25 yards to nip a Harvard eight which had led all the way, by three feet.

These were two of the grandest and closest finishes ever seen in the 83 years of this classic regatta.

The President, wearing a cap, and a broad smile, sat forward tensely in his seat, his eyes glued on his strapping son sitting in the waist of the Harvard Jayvee boat, pulling a desperate but futile oar. As the boat crossed the finish line the President nodded his head, apparently with satisfaction over a game but losing effort.

ELI WINS FIRST

New London, June 21—Yale has the first victory to its credit in the 1935 regatta with Harvard.

In the annual "night-before" race, the Eli combination crew defeated the Crimson's by four lengths over the two-mile downstream route

Yale's time was 10:42, Harvard a 10 59.

Time Table

H-Y Nines in 'Rubber'

Meet in Third Game at New London

New London, Ct., June 21—Harvard and Yale varsity nines were to meet at 2 30 here this afternoon to decide the outcome of their 65th annual series.

Harvard won the opening game in New Haven last Tuesday in 13 innings, Yale squared it with a 9 to 2 victory in Wednesday's game at Cambridge.

It was decided to stage the third game here to entertain the alumni between the freshman-junior varsity morning races and the varsity brush in early evening. The fact that the game will decide the series makes it a major attraction. The starting first game pitchers, Bill Lincoln and Ted Horton, w toe the rubber again today.

Both teams are in good trim with the exception of Tomas Bilodeay of Harvard.

The all-round ace, suffers from a football leg injury, was limping this morning. If he is not carry on his duties at second base, he will be shifted back to first.

Checker Meet

A gala checker meet, featured by blindfold and simultaneous exhibitions by Saul Weslaw, New England champion, will take place at the Parkman bandstand on Boston Common tomorrow at 1 o'clock.

White vs. Jordan.

By Bill Grimes

With Jack McCarthy out of the Wm. Filene's Sons Co. lineup, C. F. Hovey Co. hopes to increase its lead today in the battle for the Mitton Cup, emblematic of the Retail Four-Ball League championship, at the expense of the E. T. Sattery Co., which will be weakened by the absence of Edmund O Connell.

The match will be played at the Weston Golf Club.

Captain Carter Hoyt of Hovey's will have his first team in action against Slattery and should clean up five, if not six, points.

Jack Egan will pinch hit for McCarthy, who is at Lake Sunapee, and will team with Gerry Reed. George Save and Dick Ruggles will be No. 2 Filene's team.

Jordan Marsh Co., defending champions, has been in the cellar berth from the start, and the outlook is none too bright today, R. H. White has a strong team, despite the fact that it is in sixth place.

Cronin Back in Lineup

Grove, Hockette Pitch Against Browns

St. Louis, June 21—The Red Sox slump should end immediately. Manager Joe Cronin is going back into the lineup today.

Playing with a patched lineup the past two weeks, the Sox have had little success on their western trip.

With Cronin back to steady the infield, however, and with his potent bludgeon to aid the attack, the Bostons should get going again, at

Cronin, together with Max Bishop and Fritz Ostermueller, other Sox cripples, visited Dr. Bob Hyland during the rainy Thursday and was told he might play if he felt equal to it.

The swelling has disappeared from his foot entirely.

Bishop had the stitches removed from his toe, and Osty, after an electric treatment on his injured leg, thought he would be able to climb back into action by Sunday.

Two games are scheduled with the Browns today before the Sox pull out for Chicago. Lefty Grove and Lefty Hockette are scheduled to pitch.

Babe Dahlgren was to be back at first and Melo Almada in his center field post. Cooke will alternate with Reynolds in right.

Braddock Still Same J. J. Despite Sudden Success

This is the final article in a series by Jack Conway giving the highlights in the career of James J. Braddock.

By Jack Conway

"The new champion!"

Al Frazin, a new announcer for a heavyweight championship bout, seized Jimmy Braddock's right hand and held it in the air.

This act signified that Braddock had beaten Max Baer in their 15-round bout at the Garden Bowl at Long Island, N. Y.

Joe Humphreys, now ill, has performed this act down through the years. He once told me that there was no thrill as great for a fight crowd as the crowning of a new champion

"The public," said Joe, "is with a challenger every time. It always wants to see the champion pulled from his throne."

The same crowd that cheered Baer a year ago when he scored his spectacular 11-round knockout over Primo Carnera was just as jubilant after Braddock had boxed and punched his way to the title.

Out with the old, on with the new. It was ever thus and probably will continue to be down through the years.

I have known Braddock intimately for a number of years. He was one of Jack Skarkey's sparring partners during the period when I covered the latter's training camp. I got to know Braddock well.

What kind of a man is he?

A high minded, clean thinking Irish-American type. Devoted to his wife and three children, Eager to accept all of his responsibilities. Youth had fled when Braddock got his title opportunity with Baer. He won because he has a fighting heart and intelligence.

These qualities will make it difficult for anybody who strives to defeat Braddock. Despite his years in the fistic wars, he won't be a soft touch.

Braddock has no particular hobby. He likes to play baseball and go swimming. He plays cards, hearts being his favorite game.

He doesn't play golf a great deal. He confesses he once turned in a card of 120

The winning of the title has not changed Braddock. He is still quiet and unassuming.

He has been through too much fire and has suffered too much to get upstage because he happens to be the heavyweight champion of the world.

Jimmy knows that in time somebody will come along and lick him. Meanwhile he hopes to make enough money to assure the financial future of his little family and himself.

We all wishing you luck, Jimmy!

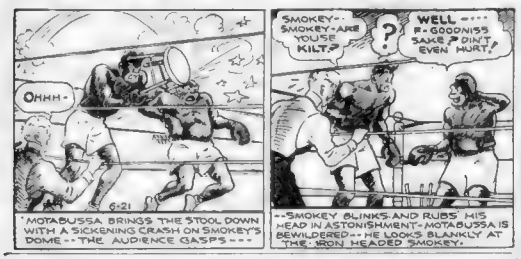
EBONY LADY WILSON'S BEST AT 'GANSETT

JOE PALOOKA



Victory!

Sgt. Byrne Pick in $5000 Race

Carrying Top Weight

By Dave Wilson

(Selections made for fast track)

BEST BET—Ebony Lady, 6th

Narragansett Park, R. I., June 21—Sixteen of the fastest sprinters on this side of the Atlantic have been named overnight for the $5000 added Narragansett Handicap, six furlongs feature on a sparkling card of eight races here tomorrow afternoon.

Sergeant Byrne, one of the fleetest sprinters to show on New York tracks during the present season, has been assigned top weight of 123 pounds, but despite this burdensome burden the great son of Stimulus looms all over a winner in my dope.

Ebony Lady in the sixth, shapes up as the most probable winner of the day. The speedy daughter of Flying Ebony is dropping down from the handicap division among mediocre platers. A duplicate of her performance in the King Philip Handicap on opening day would just about insure brackets.

FIRST—HUG AGIAN, FANCY FLIGHT, IMA GREENOCK

If HUG AGAIN can't handle a field of this sort, then she should be turned out. The Gration filly has been freshened up slightly and should be on swords edge. She shapes up as a standout on best races. FANCY FLIGHT, fast and faint-hearted, may have been a trifle short of work when she finished out of the money after forcing a fast pace last time. That effort should have served her in good stead. IMA GREENOCK, away since last summer, is reported on edge by the clocking fraternity She may take it all.

SECOND—NED REIGH, TUGBOAT FRANK, ZOWIE

Going down in the feed box for NED REIGH here. The Kilmerite has only faced the barrier twice and is still a maiden, but she displayed a world of early foot in much stronger company at Belmont Park. Sweet William, chief of the staff on New York tracks, sends her along with the following comment: "Can win when the stable so elects." TUGBOAT FRANK displayed marked improvement in drubbing Sandy Jack last time. The Roberts colorbearer shapes up as strictly the one to fear off that effort. ZOWIE'S last effort goes for the end book. The Codd colorbearer is capable of better things, as may be attested by a cocking victory over Jamboree.

THIRD RACE—MOLLY GREENOCK, DANCING CLOUD, GREAT LOVER

If MOLLY GREENOCK is able to get off the also eligible list, she should never leave this issue in doubt. According to New York reports, the Jack Howard trained filly would have won her last two starts with an even shake in racing luck. DANCING CLOUD came up a "red hot" favorite over a field similar to this on opening day, but lost all chance by breaking slowly. Under more alert handling, he may take it all. GREAT LOVER, a faint-hearted trick, will likely be on the front end far as he cares to go. The charts show that he has negotiated the full route and won in the past

FOURTH RACE—STAR PORTER, AL LFORLORN, WISE ANN

STAR PORTER figures to stand a world of beating under the weight arrangements in the affair. The Bal Parv colorbearer carried crushing imposts of 118 pounds and better in all the sprinting stakes at Rockingham Park. Under the feather of 113 pounds, the fleet son of The Porter apparently needs only intelligent handling in order to grace the winner's circle. ALL FORLORN, the main danger, served notice that she would be a hard mare to handle in the future by drubbing a shifty field in her last Salem outing. WISE ANNE, a mare with oodles of class, will prove dangerous if she is up to a race.

FIFTH RACE—SGT. BYRNE, VANDERBILT ENTRY, ALL FORLORN

SGT. BYRNE will have the Vanderbilt entry of DREEL and BACHELOR DINNER to drub for major honors. The latter pair, accounted for practically all the sprinting fixtures at Salem and appear to be treated nicely by Handicapper Ben Holmes. ALL FORLORN, if reserved for this number, may share in the spoils. STAR PORTER has been assigned the crushing impost of 120 pounds and will likely start in the former number

SIXTH RACE—HAPPY EASTER, JEANNE S, CYNWYD

HAPPY EASTER'S most recent effort was in the nature of a conditioner for an affair of this sort. The smart colorbearer whirled a mile in 1:43 in front of that. Maryland dope discloses that she has drubbed similar company. JEANNE S was in the receipt of a weird ride, when she finished third to Kissinbug last time. That effort should not be taken too seriously as she is capable of better things. CYNWYD'S best races are in the mud. He may take it all if the gumbo comes up

SEVENTH—EBONY LADY, CRYSTAL PRINCE, NOCTURNLABE

EBONY LADY'S effort in the King Philip Handicap is all that can be desired. In front of that the Howard colorbearer was a galloping winner over Glastonbury, Cristata, Jim John and other good ones over this same distance. If anything upsets my dope and hands her a drubbing, it will likely be CRYSTAL PRINCE. The latter is endowed with a smattering of class and the Rockingham charts attest to his present good form. NOCTURNLABE shapes up only as a danger in the event of mud.

EIGHTH—ANNARITA, DANCING MACK, STEPAWAY

Shooting for a price here and expect to get the same if ANNARITA turns in one of her good races. The Kane colorbearer's recent second to Prince Abbot was nothing to enthuse about, but, nevertheless, it gave indications that she was not far away from top form. DANCING MACK, a winner of two straight races at Rockingham, is strictly the one to fear. STEPAWAY, fast and faint-hearted, will be hard to handle if she gets a real away into a long lead.

SUBSTITUTE—VEE EIGHT, SUN TEATIME, DE VALERA

This event will be run only in case some other race is declared off. VEE EIGHT, off general form, shapes as the most likely winner. SUN TEATIME, a cocking second to Balmacan, will likely furnish the contention. DE VALERA, bad-legged and honest, for the remainder.

Harridge Leads With Chin

By Joe Cashman

Will Harridge, able American League president, would seem to have let himself in for plenty of woe by appointing Fred "Fuzz" Marberry a member of his umpiring staff. . . . Every prospective recruit for an honorable discharge from the junior circuit and having ambitions to become an arbiter will request the same break. . . . And will be entitled to holler from the bleachers if he doesn't get it. . . .

How must John "Shano" Collins and other oldtime diamond favorites, balked in their efforts to become "umps", feel about it as they watch Marberry take off a Detroit uniform one day and don a big league umpire's suit the next . . .

"Shano" distinguished himself as a player and manager for close to 20 years . . . He was one of the few White Sox of 1919 who stayed straight. . . . He was never chased from a game in his playing career. . . . He had some experience as an umpire. . . . Need not a job badly not so long ago he asked for a chance at calling 'em . . . He was told he'd have to get experience in the minors . . .

No player in this envoy's memory was ever followed as closely by local fans after leaving the Red Sox or Braves as is Julius "Moose" Solters . . . You rarely hear any complaint of the feats performed by Lyn Lary, Tom Zachary, Rabbit Warstler, Jack Rothrock, "Buck" Walters, Charlie Ruffing, Bill Rogell et al. In hostile regalia . . . But every hit made by "Moose" starts an argument as to whether the Fenway flock was smart in letting him go. . . .

* * *

How one mighty thirdsacker has fallen in a year. . . . Twelve months back Bob Weiland, "Jersey" Higgins, Marvin Owen and "Pepper" Martin were the hailed as prize young hot-corner guardians . . . Old rotables such as Willie Kamm, "Pie" Traynor and Ossie Bluege were playing their usual steady game . . .

* * *

Now Owen is a bench warmer . . . Kamm is through . . . Bluege is a second-stringer . . . Martin is outfielding frequently . . . Werber and Higgins have fallen away off as hitters . . . And no cash in either league is entirely satisfied with its third base coverage . . . The best performances were seen around the far turn all season were turned in by Mel Ott . . .

The records of Danny MacFayden with the Braves and Billy Sullivan with Cincinnati makes one wonder how either of these boys came to be waived out of the American League . . . The latter, son of Billy Sullivan, old White Sox catching ace, was with the Palo Heuse and erased class . . .

* * *

If as reported, the Red Sox are seeking a first-sacker in the minors it is safe to wager they won't find a better looking bet than Jake Sullivan. . . . This Mack guy that mentioned as being considered by the Red Sox . . . figured financially in other Rockingham Park or the Braves He intends to devote all of his time to his business and political interests in New Hampshire

Meanwhile, various financial groups are making efforts to get control of Rockingham Park, but to date none of them have produced the necessary money.

Lou Smith, owner of Rockingham Park, was at the Ritz-Carlton today.

"I am still willing to sell Rockingham Park for $1,500,000," said Lou, "but nobody has yet come forth with this much money. A couple of financial houses have talked with me in regard to taking over the Salem, N. H., track, but I have not closed with say of them.

"I do not wish to dispose of my track in return for mortgages, notes or promises. I want cash. The price is $1,500,000."

PURPLE

Captain With BRAVES

The Braves have a new scout baseman today. He is Ed Moriarty, captain of the Eastern championship Holy Cross team

Moriarty, whose Crusaders won 22 games out of 25 starts this spring, batted for .483, and Jo. McKechnie is confident he will hit major league pitching.

With Whitney and Urbanski on the injured list it is not unlikely Moriarty will get into the lineup immediately

Holy Cross has sent up Blondy Ryan, Chick Gagnon, Pete Cote, Freddie Maguire, Doc Gautreau, Joe Morrissey, Jimmy Shevlin, Al Nemeo and other luminaries within the past 15 years, and Jack Barry, who coached them all, figures Moriarty the best hitter of the group

Major Murphy Out of Sports

By Jack Conway

Major Murphy of Manchester, N. H., will not be a party to any possible reorganization of Rockingham Park.

The major's name has been mentioned in connection with Rockingham Park and also with the Braves

This latter inspired from an authoritative source today that Murphy does not contemplate getting interested financially in either Rockingham Park or the Braves He intends to devote all of his time to his business and political interests in New Hampshire

Meanwhile, various financial groups are making efforts to get control of Rockingham Park, but to date none of them have produced the necessary money.

Lou Smith, owner of Rockingham Park, was at the Ritz-Carlton today.

"I am still willing to sell Rockingham Park for $1,500,000," said Lou, "but nobody has yet come forth with this much money. A couple of financial houses have talked with me in regard to taking over the Salem, N. H., track, but I have not closed with say of them.

WILLS AND TUNNEY WHY THEY NEVER MET

WILLS' PILOT TOO SMART

(Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service)

By Damon Runyon

New York, June 21—Harry Wills, "the Brown Panther of New Orleans," was the last of the great Negro heavyweights before young Joe Louis, who fights Primo Carnera at the Yankee Stadium on the night of June 25, came along.

Harry Wills is now a stad citizen of Harlem, 43 years old. in good physical condition, and probably in comfortable circumstances.

He would be rich if the often projected battle with Dempsey had ever come off. It was perhaps a $3,000,000 match at one time

We were speculating not long ago as to why Wills would never meet Gene Tunney when Gene was struggling toward the heavyweight title, and was anxious to fight any man that he felt threw the slightest shadow over his path

DUCKED TUNNEY

We knew for a fact that Gene told his manager, Billy Gibson, to get a match with Wills at all hazards, and that Wills' manager, the late Paddy Mullins, inconically rejected the idea. Of course, Wills would have fought any man Paddy matched him with.

It seemed a profitable proposition for Paddy at the time as Tunney was becoming a drawing card, and victory would have been a distinct advance toward a title match for either man

Now comes a letter that explains the mystery.

This letter is from Frank P O'Rourke of Philadelphia, who is none other than Tommy Reilly, one of the best referees in the country

He referred to the first Dempsey-Tunney fight in the Sesqui Centennial Stadium. He is Frank P O'Rourke to the leather business but Tommy Reilly to the fighting game.

He says

"I feel I can enlighten on that subject. Coming straight from Paddy Mullins to the writer and not by the usual 'I-was-told-by-so-and-so-who-was-told-by-so-and-so.'

MULLINS CAGEY

"As you are well aware, there was a possibility of Wills meeting Dempsey when Tunney offered to box Wills, the winner to meet Dempsey. I asked Mullins point blank why he did not take Tunney on, and as near as I can remember his exact words, he replied:

"'Tommy, I was saying that wills would lick Dempsey, but I am telling you that I am promised a fortune for that match

"'The take with Tunney would not be so much, but were I to match Wills with Tunney there would be no Wills-Dempsey fight, for, believe me, Tommy, that man Tunney is one hell of a fighter.'"

History tells you that cagey old Paddy, one of the greatest managers ever in the game, was dead right.

So he went on looking for the Dempsey match for Wills, but never getting it, though the pursuit was a rich trail for both Paddy and "The brown Panther."

Mr. Boston Gives Danno O. O.

By JACK CONWAY

I HOPPED out to Mansion Inn, Wayland, to see Dan O'Mahoney, Irish heavyweight champion, train for his finish bout with Jim Londos which will be staged by the Cross-cup-Pinhon Post at Fenway Park next Thursday night.

O'Mahoney and his party have taken over the famous Inn. Danno is quartered on the top floor in a room filled out with antique furniture. His sparring partners and trainers also live at the Inn.

Danno was getting ready for his afternoon workout at his open air gym when I arrived. He looked bigger and stronger than ever.

"I now weigh 232 pounds," said Mr. Boston O'Mahoney, "I feel stronger than ever, and think I am also wrestling in better form. I proved in my bout with DeGlane that I don't tire in a long match.

"It took me one hour five minutes to toss DeGlane. I could have gone two more hours if it had been necessary."

O'Mahoney carries some bruises from his training grind.

"I have told Dan's sparring partners to shoot it out with him," said Jack McGrath, who has been so successful piloting the Irish sensation to mat fame. "I don't think it does a wrestler any good to loaf during his training."

McGrath is an old-time wrestler and does not approve of the easy training schedules employed by so many of our present day champions.

Freddy Moran is O'Mahoney's chief trainer. Moran has been with O'Mahoney since the latter came to this country. He has been an important factor in schooling the Irish champion in American wrestling methods.

* * *

IDOL OF KIDS

Danno passed through groups of hundreds of children on his way to the [illegible] ing.

"We're going to have a party for the kids some day next week," said Freddy Moran. "Every youngster in Wayland is rooting for Danno, and we are going to have all of them at our party.

"There will be ice cream and cake and other good things as well as favors. Of course it will be a grand day."

Freddy's three-year-old daughter was in the group that was admiring O'Mahoney.

"We are going to fix up a place where Dan can toss the 56-pound weight as part of his training," said McGrath, "I think people coming here would like to see the greatest weight thrower in the world in action."

* * *

"The boy likes his groceries," said McGrath. "He is getting bigger with each meal."

* * *

HAS CONFIDENCE

AFTER Danno had eaten I asked him how he felt about his bout with Jim Londos.

"I shall win," said O'Mahoney simply. "I don't think there is a man in the world I cannot defeat.

"Londos has been wrestling many years and has a great deal of skill, but he is not as strong as I am.

"I also do not believe he will be able to equal my pace. I don't tire. I shall force the battle and keep Londos on the defensive as much as possible.

"I think Henri DeGlane is as good a wrestler as Londos, and considerably stronger. I beat DeGlane, and will also beat Londos."

O'Mahoney wasn't a bit boastful in his statement. He has complete confidence in his own ability to win the heavyweight boxing championship for Ireland.

"It was nice of Jimmy Braddock to pick me to beat Londos," said Danno. "Braddock is a fine athlete and I am very glad he defeated Max Baer.

"It looks as if the Irish are coming back in athletics. With Braddock heavyweight boxing champion, I am determined to win the heavyweight wrestling championship. Two Irishmen on top will look pretty good."

ALLISON, Van Ryn UPSET

MAKO, BUDGE WIN MATCH

London, June 21 (AP)—The crack American doubles team of Wilmer Allison and John Van ryn was eliminated from the Queen Club tennis tournament today by G. P. Hughes and C. R. D. Tuckey, the English combination.

The scores were 9—11, 6—3, 6—4.

The defeat of the Americans in their second round match was one of the big upsets of the tournament. Allison and Van Ryn were outstanding doubles favorites.

Hughes and Tuckey won after a hard-fought, up-hill struggle. The American apparently had the edge up to the middle of the third set when the Englishmen broke Van Ryn's service to take the lead in games, 4 to 3.

Hughes, playing at top form, won his service and thereafter the invaders appeared completely demoralized.

Allison and Van Ryn broke Tuckey's service early in the first set and then, feeding Tuckey's weak backhand, drove through to capture the set.

They let down in the second, but got off to a good start in the third only to have the advantage offset by frequent costly errors by Allison, No. 1 ranking American player.

The California team of Donald Budge and Gene Mako moved into the third round with a 6—2, 9—7 victory over Harry Cooper and Jack Lysaght. Budge's freak backhand pulled him out of many holes. Mako gave a brilliant exhibition.

Jefferson Club at Arlington.

The C. M. A. C. team of Lowell, which had hoped to jump a full game ahead of the Miller Oil team in the Boston Twilight League, was washed out at the Jefferson Club 'iamond last night.

The Frenchmen still have a chance to open the gap if they can remain in front of the Cambridge Cubs this evening in the clash at Laurier Park, Lowell.

The Jefferson Club, if it sets down Arlington this evening at Spy Pond field, may hop into the first division. The Cubs and Jeffersons were to have had Hoyt field Saturday afternoon, but because of the pressure in the schedule this game was scratched.

Arlington, now in third place in the race, will help in the opening ceremonies at South Acton Sunday when the new Maynard team starts its bid in the Boston Twilight League fold.

The Maynard home ground will be at Jones Memorial field. While Maynard is making its debut Lowell will be entertaining the Miller Oil in the start of a home-and-home series that may settle the first half race.

The Cubs had hoped to play at Thorndike Park Sunday as the grounds are available, but no league team is available. Manager Walter Baker, who may be reached at Kir. 5592, will take an outside opponent.

ANY WEATHER FANS

The rain failed to dampen the ardor of the many horse fans at Narragansett Park. Here are some interesting studies as loyal rooters tried to kick home their winners.

Side Track Taunton's Best Bet

Another topnotch box of futurity runners have been bracketed by Racing Secretary William Fineran for the third night of racing at the new Taunton dog track, which is presenting a 48-day meeting at its site on the Taunton-Providence Highway 44.

The feature event, the eighth, finds Side Track, C. R. Sterling's brindle offering of the imported Suitside, the favorite. Side Track finished third in the inaugural Wednesday night to the great racers, Speedy Event and Roughneck Pete. On that performance his figures to score on this one. His principal contention should come from Triumph, a well-known speedster making his first start, and Red Mark, another router, which has been in the top box for the last year.

The upset of the race may be provided by Dick Kollmore, J. E. Miles' star, which experienced bad racing luck in the inaugural, but should improve in this start. Singen Sandy, a first night winner also is capable of scoring in this field.

The ten race card lists nine other well matched events at the various routes with Side Track ranking the evening's best chance to give the feature added importance for the patrons of the sports.

'Y' MEET Attracts TRACK STARS

Nine Y. M. C. A.'s of Massachusetts and Rhode Island will be represented by 131 athletes at the 14th annual Y. M. C. A. two-State championships to be held at M. I. T. Field in Cambridge tomorrow afternoon.

Eleven entries have been received for the A. A. A. U. novice walk which is to be held in connection with the Y. M. C. A. games. Six of the competitors in this event are from the West End House A. Glasser and H. Rosenberg of that organization are ranked as the favorites to win.

Donald Fleet defending champion in the 100-yard dash, is pitted against a field consisting of such well-known runners as John Lever of Lawrence, J. Morris of Newton, Al Remeis and E. Parker of Boston, R. E. Rich of Springfield and F. Houlihan of Salem. He competes against the same group of runners in defending his 220-yard title.

Picard Has 69

Muirfield, Scotland, June 21—Henry Picard, young American professional from Plymouth, Mass., was regarded as the chief U. S. threat in the British Open today following his startling 69 over the rain-drenched course here.

PERRY Quits ENGLAND

AUSTRALIA JOB FOR FRED

By Associated Press

Fred Perry, England's ranking tennis player, said today he had accepted a position with an Australian busines house and will leave England late this to make headquarters in Sidney.

Perry said he will continue to represent England in Davis Cup matches, if he is invited, but that he will have to obtain permission of his directors before competing in other matches.

Perry said he will got to the United States in August to defend his American singles title.

"I promised the Lawn Tennis Association I'd go," he said.

He added a clause in his contract with his future employers will permit him to continue to represent England in Davis Cup play.

Jesse Owens Entered in Four Events

By Associated Press

Berkeley, Cal., June 21—Ohio State's track and field team, listing the great Jesse Owens and Charles Beetham, apparently stands [illegible] ful University of Southern California squad in the National Collegiate [illegible] here.

Owens, the Negro performer of the Buckeyes, has removed all doubt about his entering four events. He will pit his speed and endurance against the best the nation offers in the 200-yard dash, 200-yard dash, 220-yard low hurdles and the broad jump. Some doubt has existed whether he would run the 220 barrier event. Beetham is a leading threat in the half-mile run.

From all indications, Dean Cromwell's Southern Californians, already champions by a wide margin in the Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. this year, were destined to practically walk off with team honors among the 291 athletes from more than 80 schools.

Of the 23 Trojans entered, every one rated better than a mediocre chance of winning points. Without taking a first, something very unlikely, U. S. C. still could win, although Ohio State might make things serious should Owens come through in all four events. Beetham win the 880 and Melvin Walker, an improved high jumper, finish among the leaders.

The last-minute withdrawal of Bob Fowler, University of California two-miler who placed second in the I. C. 4-A 3000-meter run, left the third place situation wide open.

Louisiana State, led by the Glenn "Slats" Hardin, and Stanford, long a national threat, were California's chief worries.

Warm weather was forecast both today and tomorrow, and most of the 23,500 seats in California's track stadium were expected to be filled.

LET HIM HAVE IT—IT'S ALL IN THE FAMILY

(Pictures from International News Photoscreph Service)

Joe Lou's is visited by his three sisters at his Pompton Lakes, N. J., training camp. They probably slapped Joe around plenty at home so they put on the gloves with him just so he won't think he's any too great shakes. The girls are, left to right, Vunies Barrow, 17; Mrs. Emmerell Davis, 29, and Mrs. Eulelia Gaines, 29. Joe is a peaceful looking chap although he is rated as a "killer." He meets Primo Carnera next Tuesday in the Yankee Stadium. Winner meets deposed champion Max Baer in September. Bout looms as biggest drawing card of year.

Telephone Business Outlook Cheerful

New York, June 21—Through successive monthly gains in service connections the telephone business appears to be setting the stage for a fairly impressive earnings expansion over the longer term, remarks the Standard Statistics Company, of New York, in a current survey of the industry.

The April net gain for the Bell system was the largest for any single month since the beginning of the upturn in 1933. During the four months ended April 30, 1935, a net increase of 161,000 instruments was recorded.

This compares with 157,000 instruments gained during the corresponding portion of 1934 and a total gain of 298,000 instruments for the full year 1934.

Up to the present, therefore, the Bell system has regained about 18 per cent of the stations lost during the depression, and the experience of independent companies has been essentially similar.

From an earnings standpoint, the [illegible] preserve. First quarter operating revenues of Bell system companies were up only 2 per cent as compared with the similar 1934 quarter, judging from a summation of the monthly Federal Communications Commission returns of its ten most important operating units.

The upturn, however, was more pronounced in some sections than in others and recovery in operating income for the same period was by no means general.

Interest in lower telephone rates is still active, and the possibility of drastic reductions constitutes the most serious threat to ultimate restoration of telephone company profits.

New York Curb

New York, June 21—Generally higher prices ruled the curb market today, as the list was led upward by renewed strength in utilities and several of the more active specialties before meeting resistance. Niagara Hudson Power, Electric Bond & Share, common and preferred and American Superpower eked out small fractions.

GOVERNOR SEES 'TOTE' MARK BROKEN

All previous mutuel handles were shattered by the 8000 dog fans at Wonderland Park when $70,107 passed through the "tote" windows in the Thursday meeting.

The feature race of the night found John J, owned by L. E. Thompson, the victor.

Breaking last from box one he was never headed in the journey around the oval. He paid $9.80 for every $2 win ticket.

The presence of Governor James M. Curley, accompanied by members of his military staff, Adjutant-General William Rose and Major Joseph Timilty, caused a great deal of excitement among the fans. His Excellency remained for only a few races, but he seemed to enjoy the fleet canines as they chased old "swifty."

Your entry must reach the "Daily Double" Handicap Game Editor of the Boston American, P. O. Box 1946, or deliver to 8 Winthrop Square, Boston, not later than 1 P. M., Saturday, June 22

Here are the Rules:

To play the "Daily Double" Game name the horses you think will win the first and third races at Narragansett. Then place the names of the horses you believe will run second and third in each of the two races.

20 pairs of tickets to the Narragansett Races will be given each day to winners.

Winners will be picked under the following rules:

Entries that pick the "Daily Double" will be given first consideration. Should there be fewer "Daily Double" winners than there are prizes, winners of the remaining tickets will be scored as follows: First counts 3 points, second counts 4 points, and third counts 5 points in each of the two races. The entries scoring the largest number of points will be declared the winners.

In the event there are more "Daily Double" winners than there are prizes, the prizes will be given to the "Daily Double" winners who score the largest number of points in selecting the horses that run second and third in the first and third races. In scoring these winners the following rules will be observed: Place counts 6 points and show 3 points for each race. Tied contestants will each receive a ticket.

In the event any of the horses you pick are scratched, the next horse will be automatically moved up one space on your list. For example, should your first choice fail to start, your second horse named becomes your first choice and the third horse your second choice.

Except where horses are scratched, your selections must run in the order in which you list them on your entry blank in order to be counted. ONLY THE NAME OF ONE HORSE MAY BE SELECTED WHERE THE HORSES ARE COUPLED IN BETTING, AS IN ENTRIES AND FIELDS. The decision of the judges will be final and no entries returned.

A Coupon for Monday's "Daily Double" selections will be printed Saturday.

Each day's winners will be printed in all editions of the Boston Evening American the day after the races are run (Saturday's winners in Monday's editions).

FAIR TRADE

Practices PREVAIL In N. E.

By Hugh E. Bradshaw

New England industry is voluntarily adhering to the more important features of the now defunct NRA codes

This is the word from Manchester, Vt., where the quarterly meeting of the New England Council is taking place. The industrial committee of the council covered 71 trade associations, representing 75 industries in its survey so a fair cross section of New England industries is represented in the report. Principal among the regulations being observed voluntarily are wages, work hours and child labor.

* * *

Lumber consumption is one of the better indications of the degree of recovery. In New England building lumber is said to be fairly active. A reflection of better conditions in the construction industry which scored a good gain over last year in May. Local lumber yards are said to have experienced a slight increase in sales lately and look for continuation of the uptrend. Heavier building materials in the New England section are in more demand, and some price increases are likely over the next few weeks.

* * *

State Street Briefs: A $2,000,000 Celanese plant for Lowell is the rumor out of Washington . . . Slowly but surely the one-time cotton mill city is attracting new industries . . . Shoe workers in Lynn are willing to take a 10 per cent cut in wages . . . Leather goods manufacturers in the western part of the state report a 50 per cent gain in volume for the first half of 1935 as compared with the like 1934 period . . . Up in North Adams there is a note of optimism . . . The Greylock Mills may reopen . . . Labor trouble has kept the plant shut for three months.

* * *

Stock prices are bobbing around in disconcerting fashion. The high priced aristocrats fade off just as easily as they went up. Some who bought much lower down are discovering that while it would be a good idea to take profits now few are willing to come forward and relieve them of holdings returning yields under 4 per cent.

This is the main strength of the situation since the impossibility of selling makes an attempt to do so improbable. One cannot help thinking that a few well-placed short selling orders would bring prices off fast.

* * *

Briefs: Foreign selling is said to have been trickling into the market lately . . . The soak-the-rich tax program unnerved quite a few people . . . The chances of enactment this session though are considered as small . . . It takes plenty of time to go over such a sweeping proposal . . . Next year, if things pick up, it will be much harder to put such a scheme over . . . Rails on a straight business outlook basis look cheap . . . They are mostly low priced and offer good percentage profit opportunities between now and the end of the year.

Quarter Net Higher

Report of Budd Wheel Co. for quarter ended March 31, 1935, shows net profit of $291,920, equivalent, after dividend requirements on 7 per cent preferred stock, to 28 cents a share on 965,258 shares of common stock. This compares with

Bar Silver

London, June 21 (AP)—Bar silver easy, 3-16 lower at 32⅛d (U. S. equivalent 71.38 cents).

Bar Gold

London, June 21 (AP) Bar gold advanced 1 penny to 141s 2½d (U. S. equivalent $34.85).

STOCK Prices Work HIGHER

GOOD GAINS ARE SCORED

New York, June 21—The stock market today brushed aside misgivings and doubts and prices engaged in one of the most substantial upturns witnessed in some time.

Highest grade issues, especially the investment favorites, steels and motors, participated in the advance, which lifted them 1 to 4 or more points.

Among the more active on the upswing were Allied Chemical, American Can, Columbia Carbon, Case, Chrysler, du Pont, Auburn, General Motors, Chesapeake & Ohio, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, U. S. Smelting, Cerro De Pasco, American Telephone and Consolidated Gas. The late tone was strong.

Whether the new taxation program advocated by the President will get through this session of Congress was a matter of conjecture in the financial district.

But its implications, at least so far as immediate market prospects are concerned, were not considered unduly alarming. In addition, it was recalled that higher taxes and inflation usually do not go together.

Current Factors

A more than seasonal increase in freight car loadings for the week ended June 15, helped to encourage followers of the carriers. While much of the gain was in coal shipments, which were rushed in anticipation of possible labor difficulties, a pick-up in merchandise traffic was seen as an optimistic indicator.

Analysts again pointed to the plethora of idle funds as a sustaining market influence and the buying of both equities and bonds to withstand news "shocks" was viewed as highly significant.

Preferred stocks and income producers were in demand, various "blue chip" issues getting up to new highs for the past year or longer.

While in the opinion of some observers the Washington scene was still cloudy, the brightening business picture did much to overcome bearishness.

The week-end trade review of Dun & Bradstreet stressed the "further widening of merchandise distributing, the surprising stability of manufacturing operations and the accomplishment of major readjustments which had constituted a disturbing factor in recent weeks.

Dividend

Davenport Hosiery Mills declared a dividend of 25 cents on the common, payable July 1 to stock of record June 24. A similar amount was paid three months ago.

HUGE SOCIAL

Schemes NEED MORE Analysis

By B. C. Forbes

In what form could a reserve fund of $30,000,000,000 to $50,000,000,000 be kept in order that it would be readily available when necessity for distribution arose?

That is only one of several momentous questions raised by the social security bill now under discussion by Congress. The bill as now drawn provides for gigantic annual contributions by employers and employes for old age pensions and for the more gigantic payments by employers to provide a reserve benefit to workers unable to find employment.

These contributions would some day become greater than the total cost of running the United States Government.

Suppose the billions of contributions were invested in government bonds. What would happen if a major depression threw millions out of work and the necessity arose for distributing enormous sums to them?

The security markets obviously would be depressed and demoralized at such a time. Who would be in a position to offer billions in cash for these colossal securities?

Our banks admittedly are already stuffed with liquid governmental obligations, therefore they would hardly be likely to purchase inordinate additional amounts.

Individual investors have shown no readiness to absorb the billions of extra government bonds already issued to finance all the federal expenditures. It is improbable, consequently, that they would respond.

The truth is that the social security bill embodies colossal problems, problems demanding the most careful and deliberate thought of the best brains in and out of the government.

Yet Washington dispatches have almost unanimously agreed that the Senate—"the greatest deliberative body in the world"—was prepared to swallow the whole mountainous scheme without digesting it, without probing thoroughly its practicability or impracticability.

If those responsible for the running of any private corporation were to act as irresponsibly as legislators have acted in running Congress bankruptcy would be the inevitable and swift results.

In certain fundamental respects the social security bill transcends in importance any and every other measure propounded since NRA was (unconstitutionally) hatched.

The need for further research, study, discussion could not be exaggerated.

Are the majority of those ready to plump unthinkingly for the bill able to answer that one question: In what form could a reserve fund of $30,000,000,000 to $50,000,000,000 be kept in order that it would be readily available when necessity for distribution arose?"

ADVICE on LOVE by BEATRICE FAIRFAX and NELL BRINKLEY

Must Girl Tell of Past? Verdicts Disagree

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SOME WEEKS ago a girl who signed her letter "Betty" put her problem squarely up to this column and asked readers what they would do in her place.

An extract from her letter enough to explain her position, reads:

"When I was a girl of 20 I had the misfortune of a mistake was. I paid the price which meant 18 months in a reformatory for over a year. The best I can say of myself is that I never more thought of deserting my little son and that I've always paid for his good care. If I went without the necessaries of life myself.

"The question now is: Must I tell about my little son to the man who has asked me to marry him? Rather than give up this chance I feel I could forego a prospects of a home, love and those things that mean Heaven on earth to a woman."

Several correspondents have written answers to Betty's letter, and I shall quote from a few of them.

WOMAN SAYS "DON'T TELL"

"The girl who signed her letter 'Betty' and wrote to your column wondering if it would be well to tell her fiance that she had a little son, seems to me to be a highly unsophisticated person. What man may I ask you goes into his past fully with a girl who agrees to take him for better or for worse?

"If Betty plays square with her husband as long as she bears his name, to my way of thinking her obligation ceases. Her love for the other man, the birth of her child, happened before she met her fiance. Why should she tell him about these past chapters of her life? In her place I would not tell."

"SINGLE-STANDARD MARY."

MAN THINKS SHE SHOULD TELL ALL

"With a great deal of interest," says a Mr. C. S. V., "I have read Betty's letter just published in your column, and I agree with you that this girl should tell the man she intends to marry about her past life. Putting myself in his place I should recognize the girl's heroism in caring for her boy through thick and thin, but it's a question how many men would agree with me."

GIRL SAYS SHE SHOULD NOT HAVE BECOME ENGAGED

"To my way of thinking," writes Martha, "it is the Bettys of life who walk off with everything. I'm 26, not bad looking, decent and should like to marry and have a home and children but up to the present time no man has honored me with an offer.

"Your correspondent Betty, who has had a child, becomes engaged to a man and writes asking whether she should tell him about this slip of her early youth. How dared she become engaged in the first place?" Why let this man make love to her under the impression she was a good girl when all the time she was concealing the fact she was a mother of a child?

THINKS BETTY'S HEROISM CONDONES EVERYTHING

"Concerning Betty, who has become engaged to a man without telling him of her past and that she is a mother of a boy, I say another, I think her heroism in caring for this child goes a long way toward condoning her offense. I'm a middle-aged woman who has lived long and thought a good deal over life's problems, and I feel that Betty, like Mary Magdalene, should be forgiven because she has loved much. And by loving, I mean the mother love she had for the child.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

"I've been married for three years and I do not think a week passes without having my husband beat me. He beat me so severely before my baby was born that the little boy has not been quite right.

"I left school when I was 15 and have no way of supporting myself, because I have no more education. And I hope you'll print this letter up so that I'll read all right. My parents have a large family and I'm a burden to them. My father is a machinist at present and often is without work.

"Sometimes I feel that the razor is the only solution for me and, again I think that my husband is insane and it's not safe for baby and me to live with him.

DESPERATE WIFE.

"It is too bad that you do not live in Baltimore, where the whipping post supplies the necessary medicine for wife-beaters. And I cannot understand any woman accepting a weekly beating from a man, whether he is sane or not, without invoking the law.

"A few weeks ago Judge Grady of Youngstown, Ohio, distinguished himself in his own way by knocking down a wife-beater. At the same time he said: 'Any woman who lets her husband beat her up ought to be beaten up, in my opinion.' While I do not go so far, still I think no woman should stand treatment of this sort without seeking legal redress.

What Went Wrong?

By Nell Brinkley

WHY didn't he fall ALL the way in love, after falling so FAR? They didn't marry. He never even asked her! And a girl, who was everything delightful, whom HE seemed to find everything delightful, on parties, rides, in the jade swimming pool under the palms at the Ambassador, by the fireside, at the dinner table with her folks all there, and at other dinner tables where there was just the two of them, a rose-shaded candle, and an orchestra playing "In a Luxembourg Garden," under the moon and under the sun, is wondering why he and Cupid sort of faded away. OUT of the PICTURE.

There are many reasons why Jack doesn't fall ALL the way, head-over-heels in love with Jill, when he doesn't . . . Many and many a Jack too is wondering the same thing about Jill these days, if you ask me; but we are easyon on the other side just now . . .

And one of them is—there is a dreadful, sure, fateful cooling-off of love in a young man's breast when the girl he is beginning to adore talks too much about her past, and NUMEROUS conquests! Don't do it, if you want to be cared about. Cupid begins when you do to shrink like a snail that is touched. The young man you are stooping to conquer and whose susceptibilities you are striving to impress begins to wonder if he means as much after all—and in the end to doubt THE NUMBER OF THE VICTIMS who strew the landscape.

He wonders if you are telling the truth. He doubts your good taste. And his eyes and heart frankly go on the loose again.

Let him find out for himself the number of young men who have admired you at one time and another. And if he NEVER does, it doesn't matter.

When you are loved, and desirable to others, the person you love and who loves you, will KNOW IT.

—NELL BRINKLEY.

Hang Compact ON FOB

By DOROTHY ROE

THE CURRENT rage for leather accessories now enters the beautification field with the advent of a leather compact.

This one is in the form of a fob vanity, which may be clipped on to the belt or lapel of any sports costume.

Long-suffering women golfers, who have trudged around 18 holes painfully conscious of shiny noses, are greeting the innovation with cries of joy.

You can't carry a handbag on a golf course and until now nobody had thought of a compact which could be worn with as little difficulty as a wrist watch.

• • •

The fob vanity, designed by Evans Case, consists of a metal compact, holding both loose powder and rouge, which is fitted into an alligator or pigskin case dangling from a narrow leather strap.

A round tab at the end makes it possible to clip the fob through the buttonhole of the lapel, and a clip simplifies fastening it to the belt.

• • •

Horsewomen and golfers alike are welcoming them, and nothing could be more practical to take along on your summer camping trip or your sojourn to a dude ranch.

The fob compact may not be a part of the official kit of the seasoned cowboys, but for amateur cowgirls it should be a constant comfort.

After all, a dainty silver vanity would look out of place with a Wild West costume. But a leather fob—that's different.

Swim in Gingham

By ANNICE BRINK

"DUTCH PRINT" it's called, this two-piece tailored gingham swim suit lined with white jersey for figure-moulding. The colors in the plaid are the tawny orange and deepish green, with cream and black, seen in Dutch landscapes. For perfection in cut and tailoring, with sleekly fitting trunks, and a bodice reminiscent of a peasant costume. It's one of the few girlish things which may be worn by the maturer figure. And so comfortable for beach lolling, this suit is one of the smartest thus far. Crystal buttons are its sole decoration. Around seven dollars. EDITH LEADS DICKY TO MADGE

CHAPTER 336

I LOOKED over at Lillian with an instinctive appeal for counsel as Hugh demanded that I tell him at once what had happened to Lee Chow.

Her lips silently formed the words, "Tell him the truth," and I turned with outward calm but inward quaking to the wounded man whose eyes were fixed upon mine with lively concern.

I seemed to hear a feeble echo of Lee Chow exciting Hugh as the friend par excellence and roused that Hughes feeling for the Buchanan Chinese but the same note of friendship as did Lee Chow's affection for him.

My father said that he was all right, and that I was not to worry about his condition," I said steadily. "But I am afraid he ta ked too long for when he had finished he seemed so exhausted, almost swooning and asked for my father. When my father came in he asked me to send Dr Braithwaite on."

"IS HE DYING?"

"Ah!" Hugh said. "Then it was not Lee Chow who asked for the pas ent, I suppose you simply ... to save me. But I am not a woman. I must know the truth. Is he dying or in danger?"

I am very sure he is not dying," I said steadily. "As to his being in danger, that I cannot say."

But I must know," he repeated. "Won't one of you ... heard from Lillian to me unnerved.

I go up at once and find out just what is going on," I said promptly, rising. Then as I met a meaning glance at me ... I added, so through into your study. Then through the back hall and up the back stairs," she said.

In real way I won't have to lose any time explaining things to people on the way. And I'll be back before you have time to miss me. I would advise you, Madge, however, to talk fast and give Hugh all the information you have as quickly as possible. If I know our renowned surgeon, Dr. Edwin Braithwaite, and I think I do, he's going to put the question upon your asking so much. Hugh

LILLIAN'S RUSE

She passed down the room and opened the door into my little study. I comprehended her ruse, and was grateful for her thoughtfulness.

Going through the back hall she would be entirely out of the line of Edith's vision and Edith who was so assiduously watching the door of the library would not know that Hugh and I had been left alone there.

I told myself angrily that there was no reason on earth why I should not be interviewing Hugh alone, and giving him the messages which Lee Chow had insisted he would entrust to no other hands; but Edith's anger following upon Lillian's warning had made me feel unaccountably cheapened, and I knew I should not have an easy moment until Lilian came into the room again.

"What is the matter?" Hugh's voice was uneasy, and I braced myself to reassure him. "Has anything happened that you are afraid as tell me?"

DICKY INTERRUPTS

"How perfectly absurd!" I said hanally, and felt uneasily that the words did not ring true.

You are hiding something from me. Hugh said insistently. Why won't you tell me? Look here! If you don't I shall get up and go upstairs to find out what it wrong with Lee Chow myself."

Oh!" I cried horrified. "You must not do that! You might injure yourself terribly and Dr. Braithwaite would blame me, Hoagie. I have told you all the truth about Lee Chow, and Lillian will be back presently with the latest news concerning him."

He lay back upon the pillows from which he had excitedly raised himself, and his breathing was rapid and fluttering. But his eyes, steadily fixed upon mine, were cool, inquisitorial.

"Then it is something else which is worrying you," he said with conviction, and, suddenly reaching out his hand, he caught mine and held it firmly.

"Is it something I have done?" he asked pleadingly. "Don't you know that I wouldn't do anything to hurt you for the world?"

"Here she is, Dicky bird!" Edith Fairfax's voice sounded gaily from the doorway. "Here's your ever-loving wife in her best stunt, smoothing the invalid brow."

Beware of the Misfit

Good players have learned to beware the deadly misfit which can nullify the slam possibilities even of hands that include almost all the deck's high cards.

The ends of justice are served when rash bidders who defy this principle are set as they deserve.

But almost to prove that practice doesn't exist we have this deal—in which the bidding was remarkably bad and the play equally remarkable in the other direction.

South, dealer.

	♠AKQ83 ♡Q9 ◇A9 ♣K986
♠J7542 ♡J8 ◇8 ♣Q7543	North / West / East / South	♠1096 ♡A1075 ◇Q7654 ♣J
	♠ ♡K6432 ◇KJ1032 ♣A102

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♡	Pass	2♠	Pass
2NT	Pass	3♣	Pass
3♢	Pass	6NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

West opened a low club and East's Jack was won by South's Ace. Dummy was entered with the Ace of diamonds and the diamond finesse succeeded, but West showed out and declarer nearly lost hope.

There was, however, a faint chance. The ten of clubs was played and finessed, and dummy entered with a second club finesse, East meanwhile discarding two spades.

Two rounds of spades gave the declarer a perfect count on the opponents' hands, since East now discarded a diamond. South discarded a diamond and a heart.

The King of clubs compelled West to discard a heart, as did South, and now the Ace of spades presented to East an impossible discard.

In order to keep the guard for his Queen of diamonds, another heart discard was necessary, and South now threw away the diamond Jack.

On a low heart lead from dummy East played the Ace and as cited with a heart, but South overtook dummy's Queen with his King and won the remaining tricks with his last heart and the King of diamonds.

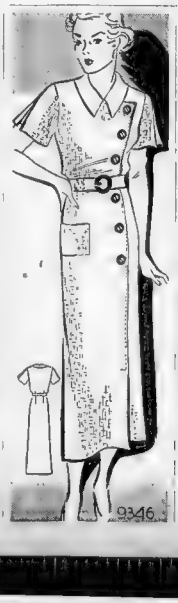
RUN-ABOUT FROCK

With Feminine Smartness

By MARIAN MARTIN

PATTERN 9346

Long ago smart women definitely eliminated any trace of "fussiness" from their sports and run-about clothes.



But they still insist on Feminine Smartness—so here's the answer:

A re-inverted pleat in the brief sleeve for freedom and action! A loose pleat below the knee for a good stride!

A youthful, flattering collar because you're feminine! A roomy pocket because you need it—and a side closing for smartness.

If you make it of plaid or striped gingham, seersucker, or shirting, pick out the brightest hue and match buttons.

If you like the luxury of silk he sure it is washable. Complete, diagrammed Marian Martin new chart included.

Pattern 9346 may be ordered only in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 18 requires 3¾ yards 39-inch fabric.

Send fifteen cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern.

TIARAS and Andeme are back with a bang and stately ladies who dress in the grand manner are jubilant.

But there are also hair ornaments for the debutante and her little sister, ranging from lacquered wheat stalks to bird of paradise plumes.

You may scatter rhinestone stars in your hair these summer evenings, and give your escort a chance for appropriately romantic remarks.

You may wear an Evangeline cap made of bits of colored mirror mounted on net. This will at least give you the appearance of brilliance, especially under a strong light.

Evening Clips

THE JEWELED clip worn at the base of the decolletage in back is a new note in costume jewelry fashions. Brilliant jeweled clips, or simulated rubies, emeralds and diamonds, sometimes several inches in diameter, are worn at the center back of the waistline, sometimes fastening the knot of a long sash, sometimes merely accenting the depth of the decolletage.

Often a matching bracelet and necklace is worn.

Fashion Flash

SOME of our smartest debutantes have been wearing modern versions of the pearl dog collar with bright sweaters and tweed suits.

Pearls with sports clothes is one fad of the moment that has stuck.

You see them in three-strand chokers and in single-strand lengths, decorating the most aristocratic throats these days.

Black pearls are on the up-and-up being worn with white or pastel evening gowns with devastating effect.

Company Comes First

CHAPTER 50

(This is a serialization of the Cosmopolitan production released by Warner Bros.)

Now came a wave of excitement spreading through the hong. The general manager, Mr. Truesdale, "the Gentleman", was due on the next steamer.

Every one in the hong had his own particular interest in the event, the younger men hoping the manager would think them outstanding and promote them.

Joe Burnham was hoping that Stephen would be transferred and himself made manager—undoubtedly that was why he had been sent here in the fall; Elsie hoping they might be transferred to a larger city for Dee-dee's sake; Hester hoping Mr. Truesdale might grant the new dwelling; Stephen filled with concern that his office should be in perfect order, and that the manager should be satisfied with what he had done in the territory.

Hester prepared the hong for his coming—each piece of company furniture accounted for; the building, ramshackle as it was, made to give forth a well-cared-for air. Kin supported her valiantly in her efforts. What a catastrophe if he should lose face before the great one coming from Shanghai!

Hester Wins Praise

The general manager was impressed. On the first day of his stay, he said to Stephen, "I congratulate you, Chase, on your wife. She is a help in the company."

A little later Stephen, managing to get away from the conference for a few moments, rushed upstairs to tell Hester what Truesdale had said of her.

That night, at the dinner given for the company people to meet the general manager, Hester was in a warm glow of happiness under the memory of his praise. Elsie should be thankful she was starting under such a man, she thought, remembering her own beginnings with a general manager who did not say gracious things to wives.

Imagine talking to the old manager, the way Elsie Burnham was now talking to this one, telling him all about Dee-dee! But then who would not be interested in Dee-dee?

Hester smiled to herself, thinking of how enasterful the little boy had looked, riding triumphantly on the back of his amah that morning, beating her with his fists until she quickened her pace to a jog trot, her bound feet pounding the floor like tiny hoofs.

Talk of Children

Elsie was wondering if she dared hint to Mr. Truesdale her fears about living in the hong, situated as it was in the midst of the Chinese city. Not a safe place for a baby. Now, if she could live in Shanghai.

Only the morning amah had said, upholding Kin in his seat for women's, "Number two great lady, you no saves. My side must eches plenty wife, plenty son. Suppose many die, have got plaps one left. Your side all beplaps one left. Your side all belong live. But my thinkes you more better catchee one more all same Dee-dee."

Elsie had laughed at amah's quaint philosophy, but a faint dread remained. She gave her attention to the general manager who was saying graciously, "I met a handsome little boy in the fall today."

"Oh, that must have been Dee-dee!"

Impetuously she spoke and all at the table laughed.

"If there were a dozen children in the house, you'd be sure it was Dee-dee," her husband teased her.

"But it was Dee-dee!" There was no room in Elsie Burnham's mind for humor in regard to her son, and she was a little affronted at the laughter. Mr. Truesdale came to her rescue.

"Stand by your guns, Mrs Burnham. I have two sons and I know how you feel."

They disregarded the rest of the table and fell to talking of their boys.

"Mine are at college," said the manager.

"Mine is going to be. What do you think? Is the best college for a boy?" Elsie was dreadfully serious.

"Well, I don't know that you need to decide now," he answered, looking at her kindly.

"He's no different from mine, so human," thought Elsie. And then without her volition the words spoke themselves.

Company First

"Oh, Mr. Truesdale, this isn't any place for a child. If only we could live in Shanghai!"

She was not prepared for the instant change that came over him. No longer did the kind father look out of his eyes. Now he was the general manager of the Company.

"You know we can't any of us be choosers in the Company, Mrs. Burnham. Of course, if I had my way, we'd all live in Shanghai." Then he turned back to Hester.

Elsie attended closely to the eating of her salad, seeing through a blur the three stalks of asparagus thrust through a ring of pimento, Kin's special company salad.

Her husband would never forgive her for this. It was a proud boast that he had never asked the Company for anything. Too late she had perceived that the general manager's first allegiance was to the Company.

Angrily she dug into the asparagus, thinking how naked it looked, lying there without any lettuce. Some Company people had gardens and could have lettuce. She felt ill-treated.

The general manager ought to know she was a good sport, after the way she had stuck it out off there in Reechuan, and the baby coming and all. She wasn't asking anything for herself but for the baby. And wouldn't he feel the same way if it were his baby? Elsie felt desperate. Some people in the Company got things. How'd they do it?

It was only at the end of the general manager's visit that Stephen brought himself to present the project of better living conditions. He knew it was not good for a Company man to ask for things, but for Hester's sake he must speak.

Were overcrowded, Mr. Truesdale. Many of the business companies are buying land on the island out in the river away from the city.

Well, Chase, I hardly feel I could put anything like that up to New York now. You must remember that I have just started in as general manager. I can't advocate big expenditures. Business has grown since you came up here but it hardly warrants the expense of an extra house. Matter of fact, I thought you seemed pretty comfortable."

He was thinking of their living room and its beauty. Two or three Chinese pictures hung on soft gray walls.

Here and there the sun making pools of light on the polished surface of an old Chinese table, bronze vases in studied pairs, black with age, porcelains, exquisite in form and color; the rugs and hangings gorgeous and rich.

He shut his eyes to the Chinese city pressing so close, and to the complicated life of the Company people within the House of Burness.

The Company had told him to keep down the overhead. His position depended upon it. He too must make good, he too knew the flick of fear.

A Clever Hostess Idea

GIVE THIS SMART YET EASY BUFFET PARTY

SHALL WE read your mind on summer entertaining?

You want to give a party that's a sure success—perfect food, perfect service and a grand good time!

But something easy and not too expensive.

Lady, here's your answer. Give a buffet party—outdoors, if possible; but at any rate, in an outdoors spirit of informal fun! Such a party permits you (if you wish) to turn your most distinguished guests loose among paper napkins; gingham table cloths; big dishes of homey, tasty foods. It saves—as plain as dancing sunlight—"Let's have a good time!"

The Right Way to Plan

If you haven't a table large enough to hold all foods and accessories without crowding, put your coffee and punch on a second, smaller table.

Our illustration shows how to seat guests comfortably at easy-covered bridge tables lighted with candles in glass containers. The diagram shows how to arrange your main table, in case you find it convenient to push one side of it back against the wall. Notice that food and utensils are arranged around the three edges of the table so that guests may help themselves with the greatest convenience. Flowers, particularly of the charming garden variety, make a lovely decoration. Or your food, if you choose it carefully by color, may be handsome enough decoration in itself.

Suppose, for example, you had a snowy angel cake in the center of the table, and around the base of the cake a ring of large red-ripe strawberries (with their hulls left on). That would be lovely! Here are some popular ideas for the rest of the menu: Baked macaroni and cheese, or scalloped chicken—served right from a big oven dish. A mixed salad of shredded lettuce sprigs of watercress, sliced red radishes, and sliced cucumbers in French dressing. Olives; pickles, hot buttered rolls or sandwiches. And plenty of coffee and party punch. Speaking of party punch, try this easy recipe: Boil 6 cups of sugar with 8 cups of water 10 minutes. When cold, add juice 12 lemons, 4 cups pineapple juice, 2 cups canned crushed pineapple. Chill. Just before serving, add 24 maraschino cherries (quartered); some lemon and orange slices, and 4 pints carbonated water. Makes 6 quarts.

Exciting Fragrances

Precious Scents for Varying Moods

By JULIET SHELBY

GRETA GARBO has a passion for privacy and will not permit people to watch her work at any time.

She is naturally shy and timid, and strangers startle her. But she derives great pleasure from the company of her friends

Greta Garbo has a passion for her work. She is devoted to the theater and opera. She thoroughly enjoys going to motion pictures, if she can go alone, unrecognized. People, clamoring for autographs upset her.

She certainly does not think that Greta Garbo is the greatest actress; in fact she seldom finds satisfaction in a role she has portrayed. Perhaps it is this burning desire to improve that is behind the secret of her great success.

Greta Garbo has a passion for out-of-door life. The exotic gowns she wears in pictures are discarded for sport clothes—usually a shapeless felt hat and a suit of rough tweed.

She is a born athlete and enjoys swimming, rowing and tennis. She loves the beaches and mountains of California and, as much as possible, avoids the shallow life of Hollywood.

These three passions deep in her woman's heart give Greta Garbo a love of a life of simple stability. Known to her intimates as a generous sympathetic, intelligent woman, she is known to the world as the most famous of screen actresses. That she has a rare, individual beauty cannot be denied, and even those who do not know her feel that she is one woman who has the courage of her convictions.

* * *

Hidden in this revealing biography of Greta Garbo are the names of two exquisite perfumes, which express through their lovely fragrances the spirit of this charming actress. They are sold at the better cosmetic counters in small brass briquets for your handbag and I enjoy either of them! See if you can guess the names.

Telephone Juliet Shelby Liberty 4000 or write to her at the Boston Evening American, to learn the name of these two perfumes. If you write, be sure to enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Taking A Risk

By RUBY AYRES

MY little article today is prompted by the request of a woman "married for seven happy years" to quote from her letter, who is worried because her husband is ambitious, and wishes to start in business for himself, ON BORROWED MONEY.

She writes—"My husband has a steady job, and a good salary, but he says he wants to 'succeed,' meaning that he wants to make more money."

She goes on to tell me that they have a number of bills to meet which she has gradually been paying off as best she can, but that in spite of this, her husband wishes to borrow money in order to start in business on his own account.

These two have a boy, and naturally the mother does not wish him to suffer by what she feels is a reckless venture on her husband's part; she would prefer to wait until they are clear of debt, and can even save a little money.

It is an easy problem to answer, and I can only say that from what I know of men, this man will never be satisfied or settled in his mind until he has tried to stand on his own feet and to better himself, and that if she still sets her face against the venture, it may mean trouble between them which I am sure she is anxious to avoid.

To live at loggerheads with one's husband is unbearable, and I must answer to the best of my ability that, were I the wife, I would in this instance give in.

It may turn out very well and successfully—let us hope it will do so—BUT— and this is a big "but"—should it fail, let there be no recriminations or "I told you so"; try to take failure as happily as success would be taken. A good loser is always more to be admired than a good winner.

Answers to Readers' Beauty Questions

Question—Will you please print in this column the best way to shampoo the hair? My hair is quite long, and while I try to be very careful in washing it, it never seems to be quite clean or free of soap.

J. L., West Roxbury.

Answer—When shampooing the hair, begin with prolonged rinsing with the bath spray. Claw the scalp when you put the suds on. Rinse again. Too much soap application of liquid soap should fluff up into a rich lather and it should crackle. If it does not, the hair will not be clean. Then the third rinsing. To a washbowlful of water add two tablespoons of vinegar. Dip your head in. Use the hands to comb out lime. Then rinse with water. A deposit on the hair is not enough. If there are any dandruff flakes of scurf on your hair.

Question—You recently sent my sister Pure Westmore's leaflet on Hollywood artifices that create glamour. This leaflet told you how to arrange your hair and gave suggestions for putting on make-up. I would like to have this leaflet sent to me. Is he a professional make-up artist at the studios?

June L., Roxbury.

Answer—If you will send me a stamped self-addressed envelope I will be glade to send you Westmore's suggestions for make-up. Many a motion picture star owes her success to Westmore. As a lender are he learned how to direct feminine beauty's analysis, discovered how create the feminine glamour that you see on the screen. Now he discloses his secret.

Question—I have deep scars left by acne on my face. How can I remove them? And in case an acne condition returns, how can I take care of my skin so that scars will not result?

Billy N., Worcester.

Answer: If the scars are very deep, only surgery will remove them. There are two skin peeling creams on the market that will renew the skin through a gradual peeling process. I will give you the names of these products if you will write to me again, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Those who suffer from acne must be careful not to scar the skin. When a pustule is forming, apply hot water freely. When it comes to a head, pot before. Incise it with a sterilized needle, press out the contents gently, fingers covered with gauze.

Question—How can I get rid of a roll of fat on the upper part of my back? And what is the cause of it appearing there. I am inclined to plumpness, but I have no bulges elsewhere on my body.

Mrs. Helen B., Plymouth.

Answer—A roll of fat on the upper part of the back is usually the penalty one pays for sitting or standing with the head and shoulders thrown forward. Torment it away. Clasp the hands behind the neck low down, send the fists in a circle or from side to side. Hold the fat part flat, stretch the body, rub and pummel the adipose tissue.

Ruffled Swim Suit

THERE'S a gay nineties air about a swim suit of polka-dotted red lastex woolen with white ruffles around the top and bottom, and forming deep shoulder straps, which cross in the back.

It has a pirate boudoir atmosphere, but seems to be vastly interesting when worn by a girl with the proper figure.

Then there is the English schoolboy outfit, so popular with beach loiters this season which usually consists of tailored shorts and shirt of navy or polka-dotted twill a matching ascot and a tailored white pique or linen jacket.

The Bavarian note is with us, too, in pastoral beach frocks of flowered gingham with lace bodices and sometimes even milkmaid aprons.

There is the Tyrolean trend in gay chintz shirts and skirt-length slacks, with suspenders and gay belts. You wear these with a plumed Alpine hat.

Have you found the SUNNY PACKAGE on your grocer's shelf?

It's a delicious ready-to-eat cereal. Millions of Americans have found Kellogg's All-Bran a safe, effective means of correcting common constipation—the kind caused by lack of "bulk" in the menu.

Laboratory measurements show that All-Bran provides "bulk" to aid elimination. All-Bran also supplies vitamin B and iron.

The "bulk" in this tempting cereal is more effective than that found in fruits and vegetables—because it resists digestion better. Within the body, it absorbs moisture, and forms a soft mass. Gently, this cleans out the intestinal waste.

Isn't this natural food better than taking patent medicines? Two tablespoonfuls of All-Bran daily are usually sufficient. Chronic cases, with each meal. If this fails to give relief, see your doctor.

Enjoy All-Bran as a cereal, or cook into appetizing recipes. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Young Man Rises To Occasion

Young Lady May Stay Seated

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Is it necessary for a young man or a young woman when visiting a friend's home to rise each time the mother enters the room? I mean after the mother has been bid "good evening."

2. What do you think of this letter?

E.

1. It is definitely polite for the young man to rise when the mother re-enters the room if, for instance, she re-enters two or three times during the evening. The young woman would rise to greet the mother, but needn't rise again.

2 I think very enthusiastic things about your letter! Your letter-form is practically perfect; your handwriting is excellent, delightfully legible and full of character and carefulness; and your punctuation, often so neglected, is very good.

The spacing of your pages, a detail about which I am very keen, is beautifully done, with attractive and even margins on both sides of the pages. It's a joy not to see abbreviations, and you have none on your envelope and in your heading and salutation.

But I am not at all enthusiastic about your use of green ink. Black or dark blue are best.

And in the ending of your letter, "Thanking you in advance, I remain," isn't a very good form. It is better to make a sentence, and omit the "I remain," which is old-fashioned. Make it: I thank you in advance.

Very sincerely yours

FLOYD GIBBONS' PAGE OF THRILLS AND MYSTERY

The Evil Talisman

Souvenir Attracts Peril to Army Tent on Border

By FLOYD GIBBONS

FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO, EVERYBODY!

Hang onto your chairs, boys and girls. Here comes Stanley C. Besley of Bloomingdale, N. J., with a scalp-tingling thriller from the days, back in 1911, when the American troops were mobilized on the Mexican Border. There are a lot of "ifs" in this yarn of Stan Besley's.

If Stanley hadn't killed a snake, there would never have been any story at all. If he hadn't awakened early one morning, before the bugle blew the reveille call—if Stan hadn't been a quick thinker, capable of some fast action in a pinch, his story might have had a different ending.

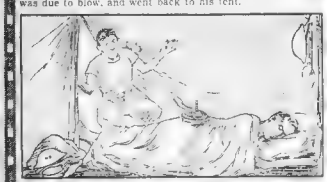
In August 1911 Stan Besley was with the 28th Infantry, camped at Leon Springs, Texas. The camp was a temporary one—just a few tarpaulins and commandeered houses for the brass hats, and row after row of pup tents where the enlisted men slept, two to a tent. Stan wasn't a brass hat, so he slept in one of the tents. He and another fellow.

One afternoon, while out walking, Stan came upon a huge rattlesnake. Now, rattlesnakes are no prize annuities you find them, but in the west where they have more than in almost any other part of the country, they are recognized as a menace and killed on sight. Stan killed this one, and then, decided that he'd like to have the skin for a souvenir, he tied a string around the snake and dragged it back to camp. If Stan had known more about the habits of rattlers, though, he'd have left that reptile's carcass lie right where it was.

When Stan got back to camp, he skinned the snake. Then, never dreaming that the act might have a terrible consequence, he stretched the skin out to dry on the pole that held up the front of his pup tent.

That night, Stan went to bed without giving the snake-skin a thought. He said good night to his partner in the tent, dropped off to sleep, and slept soundly. As a matter of fact, he slept so soundly that night that he woke up earlier than usual the next morning. A good thing he did, too. If he hadn't, there would have been another ending to this yarn of his.

It was cold and clear when Stan woke up that morning. He crawled out of his blankets, and without giving even so much as a look at his partner beside him, took his soap and towel and hurried to the wash house. The reveille call had not blown yet, but it would shortly, and Stan wanted to get his washing done before the rush started. He finished his morning toilet with still a few minutes to go before the bugle was due to blow, and went back to his tent.



His partner was still asleep when he got back. Stan crawled half-way into the tent to put back his soap and towel but as he did so, he saw something that made the skin crawl all over his body. Coiled up on the top of the blankets that covered his sleeping partner was a rattlesnake as big or bigger than the one he had killed the day before.

In a flash, Stan's mind caught the situation—told him what had happened. That snake skin, drying on the tent pole, was the answer. The mate of the dead rattler had come to find him, and there she was, lying on the blankets that covered his sleeping partner!

But that wasn't all that Stan's mind caught. In that same moment he realized that he had to act quickly—immediately if he wanted to save his partner's life. For almost any minute now, the bugle would sound the reveille call and wake him up. And if he moved even so much as an inch, that rattler would sink its poisoned fangs into the nearest exposed part of his body.

Stan crawled back out of the tent, ran around to the back where the guns were kept, and grabbed his rifle from the stack. Slipping a shell into the breech, he ran back to the tent again and poked the muzzle as near as he dared to the snake's head. Far down the company street the first notes of the reveille call came swelling from the brazen throat of a bugle. Stan had not been a second too soon. As his tent partner began to stir drowsily, he pulled the trigger.

The tent echoed with the crack of that shot. Stan hadn't foreseen what would happen next. His partner came out of his sleep with a jerk and saw Stan bending over him with a smoking rifle in his hand.

He didn't see the dead snake lying with its head shot off on the blanket beside him, but maybe he had heard stories of soldiers going berserk in the hot weather and shooting their tent mates. Anyway, he didn't stop to ask questions—just jumped on Stan and flung him to the ground.

By that time, the sound of the shot had brought a dozen men running. They pulled Stan's partner off him and held him while Stan explained what had happened. Then they dug into the blankets that Stan's partner had bunched up when he threw them off, and there, in the folds, was the rattler—his head shot clean off, and deader than a doornail.

Poisonous snakes, shipwrecks, wild horses, vicious dogs—we've had a flock of different kinds of adventures in this column, boys and girls. But I'm still looking for more. You have had adventures—I know you have. Write them up and send them in to me. And tomorrow read "Trapped in Sewer."

It's as easy as just reaching for it—and a heck of a lot more fun. That's what hundreds of Boston American readers say of the $10 and $100 bills they have received from headline-hunter Floyd Gibbons for their TRUE adventure stories. Floyd says everybody has had at least one thrilling experience, and he wants to write up yours. Send him the facts, and win a pocketful of dough, like Mrs. Henry W. Gould of Worcester, who drew a $10 check and a $100 prize.

HOW TO WIN $100.00

And Membership in The Floyd Gibbons Adventurers' Club

It's all very simple. There are no rules, and everyone is eligible. Just write down the facts of your most thrilling adventure and mail it to Floyd Gibbons, care of the Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop square, Boston. Remember, the story must be TRUE. Don't worry about how well you can write. Floyd will take care of that. Floyd will pay $10 for every story printed and an extra prize of $100 for the best story of the month. Keep a copy of your story if you wish to have it, AS NO STORIES CAN BE RETURNED. Do not send valuable pictures or souvenirs of your adventure. Send the FACTS.

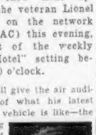
BARRYMORE TO BROADCAST TONIGHT

By N. F. T.

One of the rare "mike" appearances of the veteran Lionel Barrymore is on the network schedule (WNAC) this evening, as a highlight of the weekly "Hollywood Hotel" setting between 9 and 10 o'clock.

Barrymore will give the air audience an idea of what his latest screen starring vehicle is like—the feature being "The Return of Peter Grimm" and including Helen Mack in the cast. Miss Mack will also support Barrymore on the air tonight. Louella Parsons, famous movie columnist for your favorite evening newspaper here, will present Lionel Barrymore to the listeners.



"N. F. T."

Paying the title role, Beatrice Lillie plans to offer a dramatized version of the world-famous fairy tale, "Snow White," as the highlight of her program (WBZ) with Lew Perrin's orchestra, at 9 o'clock tonight. The playlet comes from that well-known collection of children's narratives, "Aunty Beaop's Fables."

10,000-Word Gable Prayer

By Associated Press

Hollywood, June 21—The Rev. Samuel Williams, who came from Hopesdale, Ohio, with hopes of converting Clark Gable from a movie actor to an evangelist, planned another attempt today to get in personal touch with the screen star.

He said he would go to Santa Catalina Island, where Gable is on location. In the event he is unable to meet the actor personally, Mr. Williams has composed a 10,000 word prayer to leave for Gable.

WRITER CITES RADICAL LURE

Because those in authority are preaching a gospel of frustration, the youth of this country are being lured to Communism or Fascism, Walter Lippmann, nationally known writer, warned today.

Speaking before the annual Phi Beta Kappa exercises of the Harvard chapter in Sanders Theater, Cambridge, Lippmann said:

"Our young men have seen the glut of food while there is hunger in the land, houses empty and untenanted houses, idle men and unused machinery and stagnant money and desperate debtors.

"When they ask those who speak with authority, 'What shall we do?' they are told there is nothing to do; these things are beyond human control and the only wisdom is resignation.

"If we are not to be swallowed by an imperious state socialism in some one of its many possible forms, then we have to govern successfully its capitalist democracy."

State House Briefs

Three bills calling for salary increases for three classes of state employes were given adverse reports today by the House ways and means committee. The measures would raise the pay for members of the state police, inspectors of the ABC commission and elevator operators.

The joint ways and means committee reported unfavorably on a bill to bring about state recognition of the practice of embalming through a board of examination and registration.

A bill aimed at perennial office holders in Whitman through the limiting of tenure of office was filed today in the House by Representative William A. Brown of Arlington. It provides that no person shall be eligible to hold more than one elective salaried office in the town and restricts all elective office holders to not more than six consecutive one-year terms or two consecutive three-year terms.

$216,000 ASKED For Fort Devens

Washington, June 21 (AP)—The quartermaster general's department of the army asked the works relief administrator today for funds with which to carry out construction at National Guard camps, including Fort Devens.

Ayer, Mass.—For repairs to buildings and utilities at National Guard camp, at Fort Devens, $216,000.

$2000 PLANT Payroll Missing

Providence, June 21 (INS)—More than $2000 of the $15,000 Cranston Print Works Company payroll has been missing since yesterday, police revealed today.

Police questioned members of a detective agency and those riding in an armored truck all night, but made no arrests.

Weather Report

For Boston and Vicinity—Partly cloudy, occasional showers are possible tonight and Saturday; not much change in temperature, moderate westerly winds.

Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island and Connecticut—Cloudy, probably showers tonight and Saturday; not much change in temperature.

Eastern New York—Cloudy, probably showers tonight and Saturday morning; not much change in temperature.

Atlantic Coast, Eastport to Sandy Hook—Fresh southwest winds, possibly strong at times over south portion, weather generally overcast tonight and Saturday, possibly showers.

WEATHER CONDITIONS

The sky has become partly cloudy over eastern New England, but another area of showery weather continues over western New York and the Ohio valley. Clear weather prevails in the South and the western half of the country. The Michigan low pressure area moved northeastward with diminishing energy, but a high barometric depression extends from the Lake region southwestward to Texas. The northwestern high pressure area has overspread the northern Rocky mountain states and their eastern slope, bringing clear and cooler weather to that area. Slightly higher temperatures prevail east of the Mississippi river, with comparatively little change in the easterly side of the trough of low pressure.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

LAWRENCE SHAW NATIONAL DIRECTOR

DEVOTED TO THE INTEREST OF THE YOUTH OF THE AMERICAS IN AVIATION

Thirty-nine more boys and girls have joined the ever-increasing ranks of Eagles by passing the written examination of about 50 questions on aviation history, pilots, flying and model planes for Junior Birdmen.

All Junior Birdmen are eligible to take this test after they have been members of the organization for three months. During the three months they are fledglings. By passing the test with a grade of 70 or more they gain promotion to Eagles and receive, free of charge, an Eagle bar to attach to their Junior Birdmen pins.

To obtain the Eagle test sheet, simply send a request to Junior Birdmen wing headquarters, 100 Summer st., Boston, enclosing a three-cent stamp for return postage. After the test sheet is filled in with the proper answers, it is sent back to headquarters for grading.

The following are new Eagles and their respective grades:

QUESTION-AIR

Rosita Diglio—The captain of your squadron should send his or her name, address and 1½-cent postage (Canada 3 cents each) for more squadron report sheets.

Mary Healy of Arlington—You may transfer from the New York to the Boston crew. Send 16 cents to replace your lost wings.

Herman Lisette of Norcross, Me.—Loss of pin does not mean loss of standing, as you may replace your pin for 10 cents. Your membership number remains the same.

MEXICO LASHED IN CARDINAL HAYES' EDICT

New York, June 21—A letter by Cardinal Hayes in which the Roman Catholic Archbishop of New York denounces the "persecution" of religion in Mexico as "The death struggle of humanity" was published today.

"This persecution is not against the Catholic Church alone," the Cardinal wrote all priests of the archdiocese. "It is an effort to destroy religion in every shape and form.

"It strikes at every principle on which our own government is founded for the happiness, the welfare and the prosperity of the people."

Cardinal Hayes directed that a sermon be preached in every church and chapel next Sunday on "Church in Persecution, Especially With Reference to Mexico."

He told the priests where they would find material with which was startling, illuminating and convincing.

"The Catholic church and people in Mexico," he wrote, "are suffering from a persecution so cruel, revolting and hypocritical as to be incredible had we not the facts clearly in view.

"An organized minority, controlling both ballots and bullets, has been able to pass laws that violate every human right."

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

FRIDAY, JUNE 21, 1935

LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION BY MORE THAN 80,000

Taxpayers Defied

Public Officials Should Take Heed

THE secret views of many public officials were expressed yesterday by City Councillor Gleason, of Roxbury, when he said:

"We don't have to pay any attention to the taxpayers. We can spend money as we see fit."

Mr. Gleason's ire apparently got the better of his judgment, whatever his judgment may be.

He will probably regret having said it.

Fellow office-holders, who have the same opinion but carefully kept it to themselves, will also regret that one of their number gave the secret away.

There is no more graphic example of the cause for waste in government than the opinion of Mr. Gleason and Mr. Gleason himself.

Mr. Gleason said:

"We are sick and tired of listening to the taxpayers."

The taxpayers elected him and the taxpayers are paying his salary and he is supposed to represent the taxpayers of whom he is sick and tired.

In our federal, state and municipal government we have thousands of Mr. Gleasons.

They think as Mr. Gleason thinks and act as Mr. Gleason acts, even though they may not talk as Mr. Gleason talks.

If they continue to exist in public office the fault will be that of the taxpayers who elected them and whom they now defy.

Parole Abuses

Must Be Stopped

PUBLIC sentiment will strongly support President Roosevelt's firm resolve to do all that the Federal Government can do to arouse the American people to the imperative necessity of preventing further abuses by many States of the parole system.

As soon as he found out that the two men accused in the latest kidnaping case had criminal records, and that one of them was a paroled robber, the President, in a telegram to his Attorney-General, said:

"Every decent citizen is interested in human parole systems which seek rehabilitation of offenders, but at the same time we should seek to prevent abuses of parole, especially in cases of habitual criminals."

There ought to be a uniform law for the several States governing the use of parole. This law should be based upon the Federal parole system so ably administered by Sanford Bates, Director of the Federal Bureau of Prisons, who began his career in Massachusetts.

NINETY-THREE per cent of all the men released on parole by the Federal Parole Board have completed their time without any breach of the rules.

Parole is the logical, natural way to terminate a prison term provided the person paroled is carefully selected, thoroughly prepared and subjected to effective supervision by competent parole officers.

Until all the States, however, support the leadership of the Federal Government by modeling their systems on the Federal system, they will continue to mock justice and menace society by debauching paroles to the most sordid and corrupt uses.

The Cruiser Quincy

Millions Well Spent

THE cruiser Quincy, launched at Fore River, will have cost Uncle Sam around ten millions of dollars when ready for use.

The christening of the Quincy brought to a climax one of the strangest campaigns in naval history.

Hundreds of autoists had carried affixed to their cars petitions that the new cruiser be named the Quincy.

When it came to a show-down at Washington, they had their way.

Fifty years ago the entire expenditures on the United States Navy, including the Marine Corps, totaled only a little over sixteen million dollars.

But we have grown since 1885.

And to keep our rank among the nations we must build, in the name of preparedness, many more warships.

We must spend many more millions for defense.

Then NO enemy will dare attack us.

Boston Air Service

Notable Extension

Boston's air service is being extended today.

Passenger, mail and express carrying between this city and Bar Harbor, big Maine society resort, gets under way.

The new service of tri-motored planes will carry on three days a week.

In the old days railroad presidents thought they were traveling luxuriously when, in private cars attached to the regular trains, they made the long trip to Bar Harbor from New York and Boston.

Now they and others who have the price can make the trip via the skies in a few hours.

Vacation time is extended, week-ends made longer, distance almost erased.

For man's mastery of the air is steadily being extended.

A Wise Action

By Governor Curley

Governor Curley has acted wisely in limiting the use of the Massachusetts State flag to his personal car.

Also in ordering all State cars to avoid excessive speed and obey traffic signals.

Those in authority do well to set the example of safe driving.

The laws apply to them just as much as to others.

There must be no exception to the rule that automobiles shall be driven with due regard to safety.

A Deadly Driver

By Nelson Harding

John Barleycorn can't drive a car,
Not even since Repeal.
There is no safety on the road
When he is at the wheel.

When he is in the driver's seat
Disaster marks his trail.
For drunken driving there is one
Sure remedy; a jail.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, June 21—Thoughts while strolling: When H. T. Webster's hair turns white, it will be like Mark Twain's unruly mop. Patricia Ziegfeld now a grown up lady. And Billie Burke younger looking than ever. A good definition of a columnist: sciolist. Add popularity and stumps: Baseball.

O. O. McIntyre

Look alikes: Mussolini and Roxy. Pierre Cartier is always dressed as though going some place important.

Few writers seem so indifferent to money rewards as Don Marquis. And that may be the why of his excellence. All the familiar faces under the Astor marquee gone. Louis Mann, Dillingham, etc.

Overheard: "I'm always spotted next to trained animals or midgets." City picture: The cartons of earth for sale in the five and tens. Last of the romantic fiddlers: Joe Pejer. Suggestion for delicatessens—old fashioned apple butter savoring of wood smoke. No one can strut like Harry Richman.

How many remember Edna Aug and her "Belle of Avenue A" song? Hope Hampton's coverage bill must run into important money.

That sadly wistful goodbye smile of Barbara Hutton is haunting. Jimmy Savo helps fill the gap but the theater has never been the same for me since W. C. Fields went cinema.

Col. Ed Simms suggests a big white colonial porch and a tall mint julep. Picturesque name for a pole player: Laddie Sanford. What a three-meeting the liner Normandie got. That McLarnin-Ross fight is becoming a $10-a-seat act. I'll wait and catch it at Loew's.

George Ade used to tell a story apropos of home town enthusiasm for the famous. A man whose name appeared regularly on the front pages decided he would visit the scene of earlier days.

When he arrived there was no one about the station but the sleepy old hack driver indulging the lordosis of his calling. So he walked over and hallooed:

"Hello, Jim. Do you remember me?" The jehu sat up a bit, opined he did and then was asked: "Do the people ever mention me around here?" He was told they did sometimes.

"Sometimes? Well, what do they say when I'm mentioned?"

"O, they just laugh!"

Ewing Galloway, the photographer, went back to his home town after acquiring considerable celebrity that took him around the world. He had since leaving a poor boy, nursed a violent hatred for a rich man's son who had snubbed him on many occasions. He planned revenges.

Upon arrival, the first person to greet him and reach for his suitcase was this son. In the social unravelling of years, the fortune was gone and the fellow under-fleshed and woe bygone had become the village backman. Galloway started to step into the cab, then, changing his mind, climbed up and sat with the driver.

Doubtless radicals have lined up a number of provocative writers for their side. But they dull their points to me in perpetuality writing in terms of triple classification. No. 1—the capitalists. No. 2 — the bourgeoisie. No. 3—the proletariat. Their first consideration in appraising anyone is: To which group does he belong?

They seem totally unconscious that generation upon generation of un-Marxian idealists have keyed real Americans to a different tempo. Our proletarian of today is our bourgeois of tomorrow—now am I doing, Midge? —and the capitalist the day after.

Few of our successful men achieved success by legacy. America doesn't want "social security" half as much as an unlimited chance to get to the top.

Listen, World

By Elsie Robinson

THE NEW MORALITY

The title of a book caught my eye the other day—

"GAY COURAGE," it said. I don't know anything about that book, but I'm for its title a million strong.

I doubt if that title could have happened in the last century. They believed in courage, of course, but it had to be Grim. The Grimmer the better.

With a lot'a signs of suffering. The spoiled, whimpered eye—the painful, indrawn breath—the clenched hand, the gnawed lip—that was the stuff in Grandpa's day.

Elsie Robinson

A NEW MORALITY

But we're evolving a new morality—and that gallant title is one of its fruits. BE BRAVE—BUT ACT AS IF YOU LIKED IT!—that's the keynote of the new morality.

BE GOOD—AND SHOW THAT YOU ENJOY IT!

What's the use of righteousness if it makes you act like a dose of hives?

Maybe you'll get your soul saved that way, but how about the other chaps? Why take it out on him?

Once upon a time Robert Louis Stevenson made some remark along this line. If ever a man displayed Gay Courage he did in his desperate fight with tuberculosis.

However, his remarks were not particularly popular with his contemporaries. Heavy sacrifice was fashionable at that time.

Saved Souls were supposed to be soggy. With all his failing strength, brave R. L. S. fought that sogginess.

CONCEAL THEM

"Noble disappointment, noble self-denial," he cried. "Are not to be admired, not even to be pardoned, if they bring bitterness. Gentleness and cheerfulness, these come before all moralities; they are the perfect duties—if your morals make you dreary, depend upon it they are wrong.

"I do not say 'give them up' for they may be all you have. But conceal them like a vice, lest they should spoil the lives of better and simpler people."

Sacrifice — suffering — self-restraint — meekness—resignation —patient endurance of tribulation — they were the virtues of yesterday.

They were the sour heritage left us by the Puritans, and a sorry mess they made of human life. They made a mess because they fought life.

They implanted life—those attitudes were really founded on fear. They were not virtues at all—they were blights.

Happiness—self expression—healthy rebellion—gay courage—these are the virtues of today and they're making a wonderful adventure of human life. They do not fight life—they increase life. They release life. They give men that rare mate, abundant' which Christ promised.

"IF YOUR MORALS MAKE YOU DREARY, DEPEND UPON IT THEY ARE WRONG"—remember that the next time you get all gummed up with righteousness. A smiling sinner is a lot more useful in this vale of tears than a enlivelling saint.

Fishing Memories

By Edgar A. Guest

Oh, I watched the men in the olden days start out on their fishing trips.
With their costly reels and their silken lines and rods with the jeweled tips.
I saw them leave with their hired guides and dreamed of the days to be.
And the joy I'd have on a fishing trip when fortune had smiled on me.
I fancied that happiness came from things, and down at the fishing hole
I longed for a rod with an agate tip instead of a bamboo pole.
Behind the barn I would dig for worms, which I kept in a rusty can,
And dreamed of the days when I'd buy my bait in the way of a wealthy man.
Then off we'd go—my pals and I—to the favorite spots we knew,
Where we watched the men and the guides set out and we saw what gold can do.
"Some day," said I, "I'll have tackle fine and a rod with an agate throat,
And happy I'll be as I start away with a guide to row the boat."
In time I gave up the bamboo pole, the can that I used for bait,
And I've been rowed to the fishing ground by a guide for the daily rate.
I've cast my line through an agate throat from a reel that was finely wrought.
I've gone to the stream equipped with things—but it wasn't the fun I thought.
I've caught some fish in the splendid way, but whether I cast or troll,
I know in my heart I was happier far when I fished with a bamboo pole.

Words of Wise

Happy is he who believes in his fellows, for it is more blessed to be deceived in some things than to be suspicious in all things.—Cardinal Newman.

Certain things are good for nothing until they are kept a long time.—Oliver W. Holmes.

The longer I live the more faith I have in human nature.—Charles R. Brown.

Our words are pictures of our thoughts.—Moliere.

He is the happiest who finds peace in his home.—Goethe.

Each one wishes for his own advantage, rather than that of others.—Terence.

The Weed of Evil

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

Ancient Sumerian ideograms, meaning "joy plant," put the first records of drug addiction at about 4000 B.C.

The long trail since that day, strewn with human bones, comes down to today's chronicle of "dope farms" in Brooklyn.

The police are scouting vacant lots and ploughing under plots of the marijuana weed—foe of reason, incitant of murder, wrecker of hope and handmaiden of madness and despair. Lethal gardens of Proserpine in the city of churches!

GROWN IN STATES

Walter B. Pitkin's "Short Introduction to the History of Human Stupidity" is only about as big as a piano crate.

It will be as big as a mountain if it is ever expanded to tell the whole story.

For many years the Mexicans have been smoking it—singing their "La Cucaracha" song about the cockroach that couldn't walk because he was full of marijuana —and going crazy and committing mayhem or murder ad lib.

In Ojaca, I saw a peon screaming, foaming at the mouth and shooting up the town. Excitedly I summoned a policeman.

"It is nothing, senor," he said with a shrug.

And I suppose it will be nothing if somebody bites your ear off when you are jogging home on the subway, or maybe fills you full of lead. That's what this new Brooklyn agricultural episode leads to, and it has been going on there for about ten years.

BARRED IN RHODE ISLAND

They make cigarettes out of the dried leaves and sell them for from ten to fifty cents each. They have been caught more than once peddling them to soldiers.

It was about fifteen years ago that a busy racketeer—and it happened that he was white and Nordic—discovered he could grow the stuff in the States. Now there are at least ten American States which are fighting it by police campaigns and laws.

Last year Rhode Island discovered patches in various places and passed stringent laws against growing it — with more patches growing this year!

This vicious backyard adjunct to the old-established villains of slums, stews, illicit stills and racketeers' hangouts has been growing not only in Rhode Island and New York but in Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, several Southern States, Texas and New Mexico.

In New Mexico, investigators for the State Narcotics Commission discovered an alarming spread of marijuana smoking among school children.

Growers of the weed and manufacturers of the cigarettes had put on a devilish campaign among the children.

According to ancient American custom, they passed a law and let it go at that. I have been unable to learn that anyone was ever caught or prosecuted.

Ten years ago, the Brooklyn police arrested Andrew Huerta, a Mexican sailor, caught selling marijuana cigarettes. After considerable sweating, he led the police to a patch of knee-high marijuana weed in a Queens backyard.

They let Huerta continue with his deals with the established customers and found they were soldiers from nearby army posts.

The police, lurking in a back room, checked many transactions, as the soldier boys, already badly shot with the dope weed, came in to get their customary supply from Huerta.

Huerta went to Welfare Island, but each year the police turn up new patches. But arrests of the dope growers have been negligible. Last January two men were caught peddling marijuana cigarettes to soldiers on Governor's Island.

It looks somewhat like a tomato vine, and is known as "wild tobacco." The cigarettes are made from both the dried leaves and flowers.

In recent years the Mexican government has been fighting it and has used strenuous measures against marijuana smoking, but it is a tough weed and a persistent habit.

In many Central and South American countries it has supplemented the use of "coke" made from the cocoa shrub. When the latter habit has been beaten back they have turned to marijuana.

Wars on Constitution

By JAMES T. WILLIAMS, JR.

Under leave to extend his remarks, Congressman Young of Ohio, Democrat, has inserted in the Congressional Record a speech which lines him up with those political sappers who seek to scrap the Constitution of the United States upon the ground that it is obsolete, and to adopt a new one of their own making.

These sappers do not put the case as bluntly as this. They do it "piecemeal, by astute stages of pleading, and with subtle reservations."

Their timid approach is well illustrated by their half-hearted praise of George Washington and the other framers of the Constitution.

Mr. Young says that Washington and Jefferson would not know the nation they helped to found if they should visit it today.

He says he was taught in high school "that the Constitution was a divinely inspired instrument." He seems to think he knows better now.

Mr. Young objects apparently to the power of the Supreme Court to determine the constitutionality of acts of Congress.

He challenges the right of the Supreme Court and the other members of the federal judiciary to life tenure.

He pokes fun, by inference, at the plain people of his own and other Congressional districts for the respect they cherish for the Constitution of the United States.

But Mr. Young has nothing to say on the subject of the Congressional oath which he took at the beginning of the present session "to support the Constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic," and to "bear true faith and allegiance to the same."

In the same oath Mr. Young, standing on the floor of the House, declared that he took this "obligation freely, without any mental reservation or purpose of evasion."

He said nothing at that time about the Constitution being a "political cloak," model 1787.

Now, however, he demands that the Constitution be "modernized."

This he apparently thinks can be done by making Congress the supreme power in the land and by depriving the Supreme Court of the power to protect a citizen against any invasion by Congress of his constitutional rights.

That is the kind of Constitution which Congressman Young seems to think would best "fit 1935."

'Dear Govt.' -:- By Winston Norman

Comander Byrd
South Pole Dept.
Wash. D. C.

Dear Comander Byrd:

My little boy Wilbur, aged 7, sure done a cute thing the other day, & I have took pen in hand to tell you about it.

I and my wife was talking about you and the South Pole, and when it come time to put the kids to bed we couldn't find Wilbur anywheres at all.

We searched High & Low, Mr. Byrd, and where do you think I finally run across him? You couldn't never guess, he was setting in the Ice Box with an Alarm Clock in his hand.

"For Goodness Sake, my boy," I says to him "what are you doing in the Ice Box?"

Wilbur sort of frowned, he says:

"Go away, Daddy, I'm Comander Byrd at the South Pole."

I asked him what was the idea of the Alarm Clock, and he says:

"I am waiting for it to go off, and then I will get up & see how cold it is, that's Science, Daddy," says Wilbur.

Well, Mr. Byrd, I reached down & yanked him out of the Ice Box, but I didn't give him a spanking, because you can see where my boy Wilbur is crazy to go to the S. Pole, just like you.

But what I want to know, is there any Future for a 7-year-old boy down there in Little America? There don't seem to be much Future for him up here in Big America, because the poor old Youth Movement is just about flat on its back.

Another question I want to know, how is Economic Conditions at the Pole? Is the New Deal working down there, and will they have a 3rd party if it don't?

It looks like we will have a 3rd Party up here, and that is the other 2 Partys will just about bust us bankrupt, so millions of U. S. People is eager to get to the South Pole.

All except my Uncle, because he don't like you & he says:

"Comander Byrd will go swringing down in History as the bird that ruined the South Pole," he says.

I asked him how you ruined it, and he says:

"He done it with Radio. In the Old Days a man could go to the S. Pole & get away from his [illegible] Many Long. but nowadays his Wife can keep right on talking to him all of the time he is there, by Radio, so what's the use of going to the South Pole?" says my Uncle, and I remain

Yrs. truly.
W. Norman.

Isn't It So?

There is no need of "keeping up" with others when you know that you are respectable.

Looks do not make the man.

Persons are often hated because they are not known.

We need to know what to avoid doing as well as what to do.

He cannot heal who has not suffered much.
